More Snow . . . Then Rain

Cars Claw Up ... And Skate Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — A heavy coating of damp snow clogged Lower B.C. Mainland rush hour traffic this morning. But the weatherman has warned that those people dreaming of a white Christmas are likely to be disappointed.

Police warned drivers without snow tires or chains to stay home as traffic clawed up hills and skated down.

Major traffic snarls occurred at several points in Vancouver as many drivers ventured out without snow tires. Traffic on both the Port Mann and Deas Freeway was considerably slowed by the storm.

On the Deas many vehicles slithered off the hardtop, but traffic mainly kept up to 40 m.p.h. On the Port Mann, traffic was down to 10 m.p.h. at times.

One woman was shaken up but not hurt when her car went out of control down a Vancouver hill, ran through a yard, and crashed into a house.

Sanding crews were out in force in most municipalities. The storm raised Vancouver temperatures, however. The overnight low was 25 degrees, compared with 16.2 Wednesday morning — a record for Dec. 20.

Forecasters predict that though up to six inches of snow may fall, temperatures will continue to rise, and tomorrow it will rain instead.

LBJ AND THIEU:

'Saigon Willing To Meet Cong'

By MERRIMAN SMITH
CANBERRA (UPI) — President Johnson and President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam announced today Saigon leaders were willing to meet with Viet Cong representatives on "relevant majorities" including peace.

A joint communiqué was seen as an effort to dispel published reports of a Washington-Saigon conflict over the question of peace negotiations between the South Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front (NLF) — the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The statement was released after a two-hour meeting between Johnson and Thieu at the U.S. embassy.

"President Thieu reaffirmed a willingness to discuss relevant matters with any individuals now associated with the so-called National Liberation Front while making it clear that his government could not regard the Front as an independent organization in any sense," the communiqué said.

ACCEPT ACCORDS

The reports of a Johnson-Thieu split followed Johnson's statement Tuesday that the war could be stopped "if President Thieu's suggestions that he informally talk with members

12 WORKMEN TRAPPED INSIDE HYDRO TUNNEL

GORMAN, Calif. (UPI) — A tunnel roof collapsed today on the $2.8 billion California water project, trapping 12 to 18 men working more than a mile deep at the heading of the shaft.

Because of the danger of further cave-ins, rescue crews worked with hand tools aiming at making a five-by-five-foot tunnel through the centre of dirt and rock that was estimated as being 60 to 100 feet in length.

So he asked his mother what he could do to help. She told him the Unitarian Service Committee was appealing for money to buy food, clothing and medical supplies to help the children.

David didn't have anything left in his money-box but Mrs. Georgeson remembered that when she was a girl in Ireland she and her friends used to go from door to door singing Christmas carols for charity.

And if it is a success, they're going to make it a yearly thing," says Mrs. Georgeson.

There have been some other novel contributions to the fund.

Margaret Rogers organized a neighborhood Cops and Robbers play that netted 83 cents.

Five other youngsters who put on a play contributed the proceeds — $2.62.

A blind pensioner sent in five dollars.

Four little ones, Malcolm, Stephanie, Scott and Pamela gave up cake, cookies, and dessert for a week to send in four dollars.

A native daughter of 72 years, Elizabeth Richardson, contributed one dollar, and wrote: "I feel better at Christmas by sending this. Wish I could send more."

NEW BILL

Sex Acts, Lotteries, Abortions

OTTAWA (CP) — Homosexual acts between consenting adults would no longer be illegal under a Criminal Code amendment given first reading in the Commons Thursday.

Another new section of the code would permit federal or provincial lotteries or those conducted by charitable or religious organizations, agricultural fairs or exhibitions or persons licensed by a province.

Abortions would be made legal where a hospital therapeutic abortion committee certified in writing that continuation of the pregnancy would likely endanger the health of the mother.

The changes are contained in a 73-page omnibus bill containing a number of amendments to the Criminal Code.

PROVISION RELAXED

The section would no longer apply where the acts took place between two consenting adults over 21 years of age.

It would apply if more than two persons were present, if threats were used, or if one of the adults was insane or feeble-minded.

Another amendment would require breath analysis tests for persons suspected of impaired driving.

If a person had consumed alcohol so that his blood count exceeded 100 milligrams of alcohol in 100 millilitres of blood, he would be guilty of an indictable offence.

A first offence would call for a fine of between $50 and $500 or imprisonment for three months, or both. A second offence would call for a jail term of between 14 days and three months. Each subsequent offence would require a jail sentence of three months to one year.

Failure to accept the breath analysis test without reasonable excuse would be made an offence punishable on the same scale as impaired driving.

Canada Wants Cyprus 'Pressure'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is backing a three-month extension of the mandate for the United Nations force on Cyprus in hopes this will keep pressure up towards achieving a lasting political settlement there, a government source said today.

Most previous mandates for the force on the strife-torn Mediterranean island have been for six months.

Pneumonia Attack Kills Washkansky

CAPE TOWN (CP) — Dr. Christian N. Barnard said today the death of the world's first heart transplant patient left no evidence that heart transplants should be discontinued.

Dr. Barnard, who performed the heart transplant of Louis Washkansky Dec. 3, said a post-mortem produced no clinical evidence that rejection played a part in the patient's death.

"As soon as the occasion arises we will do the next heart transplant," Barnard told a news conference less than eight hours after Washkansky, 53, died in Groote Schuur Hospital.

Earlier Washkansky's anesthetist reported that the transplanted heart worked well until the very end and that the post-mortem indicated the patient died of a severe localized infection of the lungs — pneumonia.

Dr. Martinus C. Botha, a pathologist, also said at this stage there is no clear evidence that rejection played a part in the outcome of the operation.

Drs. Barnard and Botha appeared at the news conference with cardiologist Professor Velva Schrire, pathologist R. J. G. Thomson and cardiologist Dr. A. Forder.

A statement issued to the press shortly before the news conference said:

"Clinically the cause of death was respiratory failure due to bilateral pneumonia. This was confirmed at post-mortem by Professor J. G. Thomson."

Asked if he considered Washkansky's death "negated the experiment" Dr. Barnard replied:

"Firstly, I would not consider it an experiment — it was a treatment for a sick patient."

Infection There From Start

"The problem of infection was loaded against the surgical team."

Washkansky had an infected leg and diabetes.

Thomson said that had pneumonia not played a part there was the possibility Washkansky would have lived for a few years.

The post-mortem showed Washkansky had sustained an unusually heavy attack of pneumonia, he said.

In cases of heart disease there were changes in the liver, but the post-mortem on Washkansky showed the new heart had restored his liver to normal.

The post-mortem examination had been largely a visual one and more tests would be made to examine all Washkansky's organs microscopically, the doctors said.

Professor Schrire told the news conference there had been no circulatory trouble. The heart stood up remarkably well until the point of death, he said.

The anesthetist, Dr. J. Ozinsky, said both Washkansky's lungs were affected by patches of pneumonia caused by an extremely virulent form of germ.

The infection had spread below the chest "in a small way," but Washkansky was otherwise "as clean as a whistle," the doctor said.

Conscious Wednesday Night

Washkansky, except for periods of sleep, remained conscious most of Wednesday night and his pulse rate was strong until just before death. Dr.

'Friendly Five' to Talk With Britain About ECM

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Luns, an unwavering champion of British membership in the market, said the French refusal to open negotiations was a "grave hour in the post-war history of Europe."

His government was "profoundly shocked" by the French attitude, he said.

He said his government did not consider that the membership applications were rejected and that each market member could raise the admission question at any time.

Now did The Netherlands consider the present structure of the market as the ideal of a united Europe, he added.

Luns said it was important not only that Britain and the other applicants should keep in touch with the market countries, but also that they should not turn their back on the Community.

He said his government learned with satisfaction of the British decision to keep its application in force and said that a later positive reply from the Common Market Ministerial Council still is possible.

In London Foreign Secretary Brown indicated Britain will seek to head a coalition in Europe against France, whose veto keeps it out of the Common Market.

Discussing Tuesday's second veto by France of Britain's bid to enter the Common Market, Brown told the House of Commons Britain will continue working with the five Common Market nations backing its membership in the six-nation economic bloc so it can join as a full member.

The coalition he has in mind is the five Common Market members; Ireland and the nations belonging to the European Free Trade Association—EFTA—who also want to join the Common Market.

Canada Poised to Beef Up ICC Patrols in Cambodia

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has told Cambodia it is ready—indeed, anxious—to strengthen the International Control Commission so that it can supervise Cambodia's jungle frontier with Vietnam, a highly-placed government source says.

However, Poland, the Communist member of the Canada-India-Poland commission, has objected to such a move, the source adds.

Canada's offer was sent directly to Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state. But Poland's refusal to co-operate has apparently dashed another Canadian initiative to try to dampen down the war in Vietnam and to get peace negotiations started.

The U.S. is said to be considering "hot pursuit" of Viet Cong guerrillas into Cambodia, where they have taken refuge after battles in South Vietnam.

SUPERVISIVE ARMISTICE

The International Control Commission operates in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia under the 1954 armistice agreement which ended the civil war between the Communists and the French union forces. The commission in Cambodia has been operating on only a caretaker basis for many years.

Canada has proposed that the commission in Cambodia be strengthened so that it could investigate and report on border incidents. There is no intention that Canadian peacekeeping soldiers patrol the 400-mile jungle border between Vietnam and Cambodia.

'We'll Fight' — Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — The Cambodian government warned today that 35,000 armed soldiers and the entire civilian population would fight U.S. troops if they invaded Cambodia.

The statement said American press assertions that U.S. forces could easily wipe out Viet Cong guerrilla bases on Cambodian soil show that the United States considers an attack on Cambodia possible.

Reports from Washington said a plan under consideration by the Johnson administration calls for the use of South Vietnamese government troops to pursue the Viet Cong into Cambodia.

ANNOUNCEMENT DUE IN JANUARY

Sharp Almost Certain to Run

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp will formally announce his candidacy to succeed Prime Minister Pearson as Liberal party leader and prime minister early in the New Year, an aide said Wednesday night.

The finance minister, who is 56, plans to be one of the first to jump into the race for the party leadership which is to be decided at a national convention here April 4-6.

"I do not intend to be coy about it," he has told associates.

The aide said the announcement probably will not be made until after the Christmas-New Year holiday, but the date and occasion has not yet been decided.

Mr. Sharp attended a party caucus Christmas party Wednesday night, and in conversation with reporters had no hesitation about speaking of himself as a "serious candidate."

POLL ENCOURAGES

One of the things that considerably encouraged the finance minister in his leadership aspirations was the result of a recent public opinion poll, which showed him running second to External Affairs Minister Martin.

"I do not intend to be coy about it," he has told associates.

The aide said the announcement probably will not be made until after the Christmas-New Year holiday, but the date and occasion has not yet been decided.

Mr. Sharp attended a party

TIGHTER CBC CONTROL URGED BY TWO MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democrat and a Liberal MP said Wednesday a new relationship must be worked out between the CBC and Parliament. They urged that a start be made during debate on a broadcasting bill now before the House of Commons.

Tom Barnett (NDP-Cornwall-Alberni) said that while lip service has been given to the idea that the CBC is responsible to Parliament, "this question of the relationship to Parliament has never been defined, has never really been dealt with in a way that created a satisfactory situation."

Both he and Don Jamieson (L-Burin-Burgeo) said the bill now under consideration fails to deal with this problem.

Mr. Jamieson said the problem will never be solved until the publicly-owned CBC is put completely under the authority of broadcasting's regulatory body. This is the Board of Broadcast Governors at present, but the bill proposes to set up a new agency called the Canadian Radio-Television Council.

WANTS CBC RESPONSIBLE

The Newfoundland MP, a broadcaster himself, said the legislation ought to state "that the Canadian Radio-Television Council is the ultimate authority and that the CBC is responsible to it." There were too many loopholes that would permit the CBC to do whatever it wanted.

Mr. Barnett said the idea of having a cabinet minister act as the link between Parliament and the CBC has never worked out satisfactorily.

The NDP member said Parliament should set up some kind of machinery or mechanism of its own through which MPs could channel their views on broadcasting policy and programs. These views could be put in the form of motions and passed on to the CBC or to broadcasting's regulatory agency by the Speaker of the Commons.

Mr. Barnett said that instead of trying to define standards of taste in broadcasting, as urged by Howard Johnston (SC-Okanagan-Revelstoke), Parliament

Medicare Foe Launches Ad Campaign

TORONTO (CP) — A one and two-thirds page advertisement in The Globe and Mail signed by Colin M. Brown of London, Ont., urges all "thinking Canadians" to help arouse public opinion against a full national medical care plan in favor of one to help only the needy.

The ad lists more than 500 names described as Canadians "greatly concerned about the heavy strain the government's medical care program will put on our country's finances." The national plan is due to go into effect next July 1.

Across the bottom page of the advertisement are 13 spaces for coupons which Canadians are urged to fill in with their names and addresses in support of the appeal.

"Once public opinion is aroused it becomes one of the strongest forces in the world," says Mr. Brown in one of six messages that dot the nine-column page.

Mr. Brown, an insurance agent for London Life Insurance Co., in London, Ont., is vacationing at a private club in Florida and could not be reached for comment.

His colleagues say Mr. Brown, an insurance agent for more than 30 years, is a millionaire. They say he made his money selling insurance, dabbling in real estate and the stock market.

Robert H. Reid, president and general manager of London Life, said he had no knowledge of the advertisement.

A preamble says that the persons on the list are asking Ottawa to adopt a plan to provide medical services only for those unable to afford independent coverage.

INDIANS ROUTED THEM

Visitors fled the first U.S. national park in the 1870s when Indians routed outsiders from Yellowstone.

ought to consider the role it could play "through proper discussion from time to time of broadcasting and its content."

ASKS CANADIAN OWNERS

Gilles Gregoire (Ind-Labre) moved an amendment to the bill stating that Canada's broadcasting system must be owned and controlled by Canadians.

The bill now states that the system should be so owned and controlled.

The amendment will come to a vote later.

Mr. Barnett said the results of trying to communicate with CBC management through a cabinet minister have been so unsatisfactory that this system could be held partly responsible for a lot of the general discontent with the operation of the broadcasting system in recent years."

The broadcasting bill has been approved in principle by the Commons and now is undergoing clause-by-clause study prior to third and final reading.

ANTI-ABORTION GROUP PROPOSED

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's decision to reform laws on abortion could lead to the formation of a new political party to "uphold Christian-principles", an opponent of relaxed abortion laws said Wednesday.

Edward O'Brien, vice-president of the Emergency Organization for the Defence of Unborn Children, said none of the present parties appears willing to take a "Christian" stand. He said it would be logical to form a new group called the Christian Democratic party.

Mrs. George Heron, president of the organization, said the action of the House of Commons' health committee in recommending legal abortions under certain circumstances was "premature".

Dollars and Cents

AN EXPECTED INCREASE OF well over a million dollars in Victoria city's budget for next year may exceed the increases of recent years but will be hardly surprising considering the conditions of today. With inflation adding from two to four per cent to general costs each year, more services being required and a general growth of business in almost every department of civic affairs, few people will expect the line to be held.

That, of course, is no reason for an open-handed approach to the city's finances by the mayor and aldermen. We may expect the preliminary figures to be gone over in the usual thorough fashion by these officials, but it is hardly reasonable to believe that this year's totals can also be next year's. The fact is that the city is still growing, the costs of city operation are climbing despite rigid paring in many instances, and the escalation of family household costs each year is paralleled in our corporate "house."

Under these circumstances the effort should be less to try to cut into essential services than to make sure that we get our money's worth. Almost any list of expenditures is composed of items which are very important to at least one section of the public. Taken in total these represent the general betterment of the community.

At a time of financial squeeze the natural call is to cancel out somebody's else's pet item in favor of one's own. But city officials are faced with a dual task: they are planning and spending not only for the community of today but also for that of tomorrow. Thus the piece of parkland bought today may appear a frill, but a few years from now, when its price will have skyrocketed, it may well be a prime necessity for the crowded people of that time.

Each generation of citizens is at once the beneficiary of past eras and the provider for the population to come. The problem is to balance the priorities of the various needs, get full value for money spent, and have expenses carried in proper proportion by the appropriate levels of government. British Columbia has a good deal of improvement due in that final category. The mounting budgets make more necessary than ever a meeting of provincial and municipal governments for a complete review of financing problems. Each year accentuates the need.

THE measure amending provisions of the patent and trade marks acts relative to prescription drugs is useful legislation which ought to have been enacted years ago. Mr. John Turner, the registrar-general, notes in a background release issued on Friday that public concern over the high cost of pharmaceutical products has provoked a number of official inquiries including an investigation by the restrictive trade practices commission, another by the royal commission on health services and the most recent one by a special committee of the House of Commons.

But this is by no means the whole story. As long ago as June, 1954, the St. Laurent government appointed the Isley Royal Commission on Patents, Copyright and Industrial Design. This commission not only devoted special attention to section 41 of the Patents Act, now being amended by Mr. Turner's bill, but also proposed changes rather similar to those now recommended to Parliament. The elapsed time between the report of Mr. Justice Isley and the Turner bill is eight years; an interesting indication of the priority attached to the consumer interest by successive governments.

As Mr. Turner properly notes, there has been beneficial action of a different sort by the present ministry, since the hearings of the special House committee confirmed earlier findings that drug prices here are among the highest in the world. In particular, the sales tax has been removed and duties lowered.

Effective as Tariffs

It is too easily forgotten that patents and trade marks can be used as effectively as tariffs in shutting out imports and forcing consumers to pay inflated prices to privileged manufacturers. To quote Mr. Turner: "Official inquiries into the pharmaceutical industry revealed that drug sales at the manufacturers' level are characterized by a notable lack of price competition." The drug industry operates within a framework of protection afforded by the present patent and trade mark laws. Patent protection has prevented prospective competitors from entering the market and the industry is dominated by a relatively few international companies.

Mr. Turner has outlined the main provisions of the bill. They are intended to lessen patent protection against imports and thus to bring about an easing of manufacturers' prices.

At the present time, the commissioner of patents has power, in respect to foods and medicines, to grant a compulsory licence to a prospective competitor to manufacture a patented drug. Mr. Turner notes that few licences have been granted in recent years — and, indeed, it was the finding of the Isley commission that only four (of 14 applications) had been granted in the entire period, August 1, 1935, to December, 1959. So this protection has certainly not amounted to much.

Compulsory Licenses

The new and highly interesting proposal, adopted by Mr. Turner and not to be found in the Isley Report, is that the commissioner be given full authority to issue compulsory licences to import medicines, whether or not fully manufactured. This should be of substantial benefit to consumers.

All the inquiries have been concerned about undue delays in compulsory licensing brought about by the patentees. The Isley commission observed: "One disturbing possibility is that delaying tactics on the part of patentees who oppose applications for compulsory licences will develop. In view of the possibility of large profits on some patented foods and medicines, particularly drugs, the field is such that a substantial delay may be of great financial advantage of the patentee."

Mr. Isley proposed new rules requiring a completion of the process in a

THE three-month period, failing which the application would be "deemed to be granted," the only remaining matter being the fixing of royalties. The new legislation provides, less drastically, an interim licence if delays beyond six months are experienced.

Mr. Turner makes no mention of foods. It was the view of the Isley commission that "foods should be coupled with medicines, mainly because it is in some cases hard to say whether a substance is a food or a medicine."

The new legislation would also amend the Trade Marks Act, which now permits a Canadian subsidiary to block importation of drugs bearing a trade mark owned by the subsidiary. It is thus possible for brand name drugs of the same company to sell at a higher price in Canada than that obtaining in another country. The proposed amendment would remedy this situation except in the case of proprietary medicines.

At long last, therefore, Parliament is making a useful beginning in the reform of patent legislation. It is logical to start with drugs because they are essential and because drug prices have been of particular public concern. But Mr. Turner should not be satisfied with this good start. There is little doubt that patent protection has been helpful to other manufacturers in maintaining artificially high prices in the Canadian market.

An interesting follow-up field for a minister of consumer affairs would be the electronics industry and its Canada radio patents pool.

FROM WASHINGTON

A 'Hawk' and a 'Dove' on Dissent

BY AN interesting coincidence two prominent senators each on the same day recently delivered the first part of planned two-part policy statements on Vietnam. Taken together, they define the "hawk" and "dove" as they stand in Congress at this moment of approaching Christmas adjournment. The "dove" speaker was, predictably, Sen. J. W. Fulbright (Democrat-Arkansas). The "hawk" was, Sen. Thomas Dodd (Democrat-Connecticut). The latter's words would not normally rate space in print, Sen. Dodd having earlier been censured by his colleagues for his financial misdeeds. But in this case he brought out some points worth noting. More important, the glaring differences between the two speeches illustrate the nature of the gap between the speakers.

For example, both senators devoted much time to the subject of dissent. Sen. Dodd attacked the oft-heard view that the administration of President Johnson is attempting to stifle dissenting views on Vietnam. On the contrary, he said: "In the entire history of free nations, I am certain that there is no wartime precedent for the extravagant degree of freedom that the Johnson administration had accorded to dissenters and demonstrators."

Sen. Fulbright thought Sen. Dodd's very approach was dangerous: "I am not the slightest bit grateful to the administration for my freedom of speech. That freedom is an inalienable right... When the government abstains from suppressing dissent, it is doing nothing more than complying with one of the explicit conditions of its constitutional trust. That is not a thing for which gratitude is owed."

But Constitution or no, Sen. Dodd noted, President Lincoln suppressed scores of newspapers, suspended habeas corpus and imprisoned thousands of dissenters and suspected dissenters without trial during the Civil War.

He didn't favor a repetition today — society now is stronger, he said. If anyone was trying to stifle expression of opposing opinions, he said, it was the dissenters themselves who had tried to prevent administration officials from defending their policy in public places.

Sen. Fulbright countered with his explanation of the growing extremism of behavior by some dissenters. "In making the distinction between orderly dissent, of which it professes to approve," he said, "and disorderly dissent, of which we all disapprove, the administration seems unable to understand that it is the futility of the one that has given rise to the other."

Unreceptive Administration

A year and a half ago, he said, the dissenters were ready to have their views expressed before his foreign relations committee or by other orderly means. "Now they are no longer satisfied because these means have been shown to be ineffective. Instead of demonstrating that a degree of change could be accomplished through traditional democratic processes, the hearings held before the foreign relations committee have demonstrated — thus far — that the administration is as unreceptive to the views of senators, experienced diplomats, and eminent scholars as it is to the views of the young firebrands of the New Left."

Looking Back

From the Times, Dec. 21, 1967.

Ottawa — It was suggested in the House of Commons by Mr. Macpherson that the federal and British Columbia governments prepare a case for the Privy Council to decide the question of control of Indian lands after the Indians cease to use them as reserves.

He pointed out that many reserves in B.C. were contiguous to large areas and it would be much better for Indians themselves and all concerned if they were removed from the centres of civilization.

Dissenters have a habit of accusing the administration of stifling dissent whenever its spokesmen bring up this matter. Of course, it is doing nothing of the kind. It is merely pointing out a factor that ought to be considered.

Too Many Subjects

The number of different subjects offered and taught in our public schools is too great. Problems of selection are too difficult for many children and parents. Surely the children would benefit far more from learning fewer subjects in greater depth than from being offered merely a taste of so many. The basics of most disciplines tackled over a short period of time often appear difficult and unattractive, whereas when pursued in more detail and for a longer period they "sink in" and become "friends" through familiarity and understanding.

Let us therefore contract the curriculum both in the number of academic subjects and in the variety of different games offered. This would ease the problem of choice for pupils and the availability of teachers. Not everything one desires to know or do has to be taught or done at school. —Victor A. Rogers, School Trustee.

"Holier-Than-Thou"

William Frye's article in your Saturday edition was one more perfect example of the American holier-than-thou attitude to the Vietnam war. A great deal has been made of the possibility that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops take refuge in Cambodia and Laos, particularly lately — one feels that the United States is preparing the world for attacks in force against these two countries.

But the Americans have a huge air base in Thailand from which they fly most of their heavy air attacks. There have been no suggestions that the North Vietnamese would be perfectly entitled, if the Russians armed them adequately, to bomb Thailand, and one can imagine the cries of outrage that would be emitted if they did. —Mrs. W. Burchill, 1525 Davie.

Preserving the Paradox

THE CABINET'S REJECTION once again of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities' request for legislation concerning Sunday afternoon sport and entertainment, for which admission could be charged, emphasizes one of the anomalies of civic and municipal authority in this province.

Vancouver, with amendment of its own charter, held a local vote and now permits sports and entertainment on a commercial basis on Sunday afternoons. Other cities and municipalities, under provincial legislation, cannot submit the proposal to determine whether or not their people want similar privileges.

In its submission to the government, the UBCM did not ask for legislation authorizing paid attendance at Sunday afternoon sport or entertainment. It sought only authority by which the question could be put to the people on a local option basis. When the resolution was carried almost unanimously at the last municipalities' convention, the new and highly interesting proposal, adopted by Mr. Turner and not to be found in the Isley Report, is that the commissioner be given full authority to issue compulsory licences to import medicines, whether or not fully manufactured. This should be of substantial benefit to consumers.

New Discovery 'Genetic Copier'

By JOHN DAVY

The real significance of the recently announced genetic experiments in California is that they open the way to manufacuring artificial genes, the units of heredity.

There is no question of creating "test-tube life" any more than a publisher who prints a book has synthesized a novel.

What Nobel Prize winner Dr. Arthur Kornberg's group at Stanford University and California Institute of Technology has done is to set up a kind of biological duplicating machine. They inserted into it the genetic material of a virus which infects bacteria, and ran off a large number of copies, which proved as infections as the original.

The duplication process was controlled and operated by a complex enzyme—a protein—also extracted from virus, which manages the copying process in nature as well.

Thus there now exists a test-tube system which can duplicate samples of genetic material. This has set off much speculative comment about possible cures or treatments for hereditary diseases, which is misleading and wholly premature.

The real situation is that there now exists a further powerful tool for probing the detailed anatomy of living processes. These processes are controlled by segments of genetic material—the genes—in the nuclei of living cells.

It may become possible to isolate particular genes and modify them, or assemble artificial genes, and duplicate them by the Stanford method in the test tube.

The next step would be to insert such test tube genes into living cells, to change their hereditary properties deliberately. One method

Will Pearson's Decision Alter a Delicate Balance?

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—The way Prime Minister Pearson sees it, there will be a neat and orderly transfer of power next spring to a new Liberal prime minister who will calmly carry on with Grit good works.

And why not? As every Liberal should know, what's good for the Liberal Party is good for the country.

But satisfactory though this may be for the 34 per cent of the voters who told Gallup pollsters in October that they would vote Liberal, it is hardly so for the 43 per cent who said they would vote Conservative, and the 18 per cent who said they would vote NDP.

So the question arises whether the prime minister's announced intention to retire in the spring will not alter the delicate balance of power in Parliament, to the frustration of Mr. Pearson's plans.

Ten days ago the government defeated a Conservative non-confidence motion 111 to 95. On the face of it, had a score of Tory MPs not been absent Mr. Pearson would be waging an election campaign today instead of planning his retirement.

This assumes that the NDP would still have voted with the Tories if the government's defeat had been in prospect, which I suspect is too great an assumption. However, if a vote were held tomorrow under those circumstances perhaps the NDP would.

The reason, as I see it, is that for the first time in this Commons the two main opposition parties have political reason to make common cause against the minority government. They both stand to gain if they can force the Liberals into an election with a lame duck leader. Both would expect the Tories to win—but the NDP would have a better chance to become the official opposition than it likely would in an election with the government presenting a refurbished image under a new leader.

Waring

Of course, the Tories and NDP should have a more responsible reason for precipitating an election than political opportunism, but it wouldn't be hard to drum up several. Like housing, and inflation, and higher taxes, and the uncertainty about medicare.

The Tories have another reason too: the last lustre of their new leader is beginning to fade. Observers are asking why Robert Stanfield isn't taking more positive positions. What are his policies? What would he do as prime minister? Strangely, he isn't saying.

For that matter, the NDP has another reason too—or more properly, NDP leader Tommy Douglas has. NDP sources made it clear six months ago that if Douglas isn't at least leader of the official opposition after the next election, he'll be through as NDP leader.

So the Liberals' hold on office will be more tenuous than ever this winter, requiring more conscientious Liberal attendance in the Commons. The Grits don't risk being caught on the short end of a vote while they lack a candidate for the prime ministership. They dare not rely, as they have in the past, on lame duck opposition MPs who know they won't be back and want to keep their $18,000-a-year job as long as they can.

This will be good medicine for Commons attendance, but like many a medicine, it has side effects. One is that the rumblers for the Liberal leadership will have to do most of their running in Ottawa, not out on the hustings where the votes are.

Some Crustaceans Found In Strange Environments

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Crustaceans as a group have been remarkably successful in populating all the environments that might be called "usual" on this earth; they abound in all parts of the sea from above tide to the greatest depths; they are found in most bodies of fresh water and some have even invaded the land. They are one of the more successful groups in the animal kingdom, being one of the earliest to evolve and one of the most versatile in body plan and adaptability.

Quite a few members of this ubiquitous group have distinguished themselves by occupying some highly unusual types of habitat and by so doing have demonstrated further their great ability to adapt to unique environments. One that has become more widely known in recent years is the so-called "brine shrimp," a tiny delicate-looking crustacean that has the remarkable ability of living and breeding in concentrated brine. Thanks to the fact that these creatures produce eggs capable of being dried for long periods of time and therefore easily transported by winds and birds, brine shrimp are found all over the world wherever strong saline water exists, in salt lakes, saline pools, and in man-made salt-producing basins. It seems incredible that such a fragile-appearing creature can live in water that will support practically no other living thing, yet it manages to withstand the toxic nature of the water and to filter out sufficient organic matter to sustain life. So successful is it that the eggs are now harvested in great numbers to be widely sold as a source of food for aquarium fishes or for aquatic animals used in research.

Another crustacean living in an unusual habitat is the gribble which attacks any wood in contact with the sea, especially around the low tide level. This little fellow, less than a quarter inch in length, is a true isopod related to the sow bug found on land but one that has become specialized for eating and digesting wood. Because they multiply rapidly, once established, gribbles do great damage to unprotected wooden structures in salt water, flaking away the surface by their shallow burrows in the wood. In a few months an untreated pine may take on an owl-glass shape and eventually topple and exposed parts of a wooden hull may be badly abraded.

Some crustaceans have found an easy livelihood in close association with other animals, developing relationships varying greatly in degree of intimacy. A group that has come to notice only recently are called "cleaner shrimps" because they regularly clamber over certain fishes and possibly other animals removing parasites and organic matter that may have settled in places inaccessible to the host. A local species spends most of its time among the stinging tentacles of a sea anemone where it is perfectly safe from predators while another unrelated form finds shelter beneath the spines of a large sea urchin.

Coming Year Will Be Critical For United States Politics

By WALTER LIPPmann

The safest thing to say now is that it is too early to guess about the 1968 elections. But politicians and journalists are not allowed to play it that safely. For the politicians are already making choices and decisions, and, as for the journalists, they had better go out of business if they want it never to be said that they guessed wrong.

We must have some idea where we are going during the coming months.

While there is no way of forecasting now whether the Democrats or the Republicans will win the presidency or who the Republican candidate will be or even whether Lyndon Johnson will be the Democratic candidate, it is possible, I think, to see that 1968 may be a critical year in American party politics—a year like 1932, when a new coalition of groups and factions emerged and took over political power.

This may be, this can be, a year when the Democratic Party, as brought together by Franklin Roosevelt under the banner of the New Deal, gives place to a new coalition formed by the Republicans. This is not a certainty. The Republicans may fumble the opportunity. But the dominant feature of the political scene will be, I venture to predict, that this historic opportunity now presents itself.

We start, then, with the general proposition that in this big country all successful political parties are coalitions. When they are solid, interlocking coalitions of powerful interests, the party is likely to dominate political life until it breaks up and important elements in the coalition seek their satisfaction in the other party.

In the past hundred years there have been two great coalitions. The first was Republican, formed at the time of the Civil War; it was a union of the manufacturing interests of the North and of the farmers outside of the South.

While this coalition lasted, the Republican Party won most of the elections, losing only a few and then only temporarily. In 1912 the Republican coalition began to break up and, although it recovered in the 1920s, after the reaction against Woodrow Wilson and the First World War, the coalition went smash in 1932 in the Great Depression.

Since then the Democrats have been the dominant party.

They have had a coalition of organized labor, farmers, ethnic minorities, the intellectual community and the young voters. This coalition was put together by Franklin Roosevelt and, although it had a setback under Gen. Dwight Eisenhower because of the Korean war, it elected John F. Kennedy in 1960 and Lyndon Johnson in 1964.

The crucial question for 1968 is first whether the Democratic coalition is breaking up.

The second question is

political power, can be dis-

This is the overriding issue on which Sen. Eugene McCarthy has chosen to take his stand.

It is a gallant and discerning decision and, whatever the outcome, it will mean that someone has come forth, not to fulfill an ambition or to work off a grievance, but to keep the Democratic belief that the greatest issues in public should be decided not in the streets but by orderly and

Today on the eve of the 1968 election year certain things are clear. One of them is that the Democrats are split over

Lyndon Johnson.

It is impossible to make a definite guess about this.

There is in the first place the uncertainty of war. While there is little doubt, it seems to me, that the war cannot be won in the sense that South

Vietnam becomes an independent, anti-Communist and anti-

Chinese state, it might happen that Hanoi will be so battered that it makes a gesture of submission.

This may be unlikely, but it is possible. In that case

Lyndon Johnson may yet appear in the role of a victor.

This might rally a large part of the old Democratic majority. But we must remember that as with Mr. Wilson in 1918 and Winston Churchill in 1945, being victorious is not necessarily and always a free ticket to election.

The other great asset of the

that as late as 1967 there were, according to the Gallup

Poll, 46 Democrats to every 27 Republicans in the country.

What the proportion will be in November will surely depend in a great measure on whether the Republicans nominate a candidate who attracts or repels Democrats.

Moreover, the Johnson leaders must remember that a landslide victory very much like that of Mr. Johnson's in 1964 was won by Herbert

Hoover in 1928. Mr. Hoover in 1928 won by 444 electoral votes to 87. Yet, four years later, his huge majority had disappeared; the Great Depression made him a one-term president, and the Republican Party after that defeat was so broken that it lost the next four elections in a row.

Many Lost

Out of the old Democratic coalition, Mr. Johnson today has lost most of the intellectual community and a very large proportion of the young voters. It is not easy to see how he can win them back.

There is little he can say or do which will make them forget or forgive the way that pledges were broken and promises reversed immediately after the 1964 election.

Not even a gesture of surrender from Hanoi will restore the confidence of the intellectuals and the young, their faith and hope in the future.

It is true, of course, that the intellectual community and the young people are nothing like a majority of the people. But in this century, at least, the Democrats have never won an election without their active support. If the

Yule Lighting Prizes Listed

The magic touch with Christmas lighting brought first prize for the best-decorated house in the Junior Chamber of Commerce lighting contest to K. W. Middleton, 3216 Frechette St.

And it didn't stop there, for the Middleton home was also judged second in the class for decorated windows and doors.

Judged second in the fully-decorated house class was the home of Andrew Carré, 1378 Hillside. Third was Erik Hansen's home at 2003 Shakespeare.

First prize in the decorated window and door class went to W. R. Bowles, 3945 Morgan, and third went to Monterey School, 851 Monterey Ave.

The best group display of three or more houses went to the 3100-block Westdowne. The block was the only entry in the class.

NAVAL SHIPS

In a separate class for naval ships, HMCS Saskatchewan captured the prize for the best-decorated vessel — a signal honor, as the Saskatchewan was the ready ship in port and p.m.

Petition for Union Vote Turned Over to Peterson

A delegation of five women Wednesday said even a labor department official agreed with their contention the Labor Relations Act needs a thorough overhaul.

The women, led by Mrs. Len Shankel of Prince George, present a 5,000-signature petition signed by Prince George residents demanding a government-supervised vote among pulp workers there to let them choose between a Canadian and an international union with headquarters in the U.S.

The B.C. Labor Relations Board twice has refused to allow the vote on which union would represent the men as collective bargaining agent, the status now held by International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

TO PETERSON They presented the petition to C. R. Margison, acting deputy labor minister, and said he agreed with them that the Act required changes.

He said he would pass on the petition to Labor Minister Leslie Peterson and was sure it would be sent also to the labor relations board.

The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada is seeking certification as bargaining agent in Prince George pulp mills to supplant the IBSPMW, as it did this year at Harmac following a long and bitter struggle.

"Instead of going through all this agony, hardship and bitterness (as in Harmac) why doesn't the labor relations board hold a vote in the first place to see whether the people want the change or not," Mrs. Shankel commented.

Mrs. Stanley Shewaga, of Harmac, said the labor relations board has an agent of an international union representing organized labor on the board and he should be replaced by someone representing a Canadian union.

The women said they would return to the capital if Mr. Peterson has not given a satisfactory reply to the petition by mid-January.

HAVANA (AP) — Premier Fidel Castro's government has jailed about 40 pro-Soviet Communist party members, including a central committee member, for opposing Castro's policy of exporting revolution, informed sources say.

The sources said Wednesday night that the dissidents could not be described as being against the government but favored a Soviet-style line or concentrating on domestic economic problems. They also opposed the party's campaign to eliminate material rewards for workers.

They said the old-line Communists were arrested three or four months ago. The purge appeared to be part of a crackdown reported earlier against lesser-known Communists and a handful of Havana University professors and students.

The sources said the leader of the group was Anibal Escalante, who was denounced by Castro in 1962 for "sectarianism" and for having old ideas. Escalante was reported studying in Poland and the Soviet Union and returned to Cuba about two years ago.

MAJOR JAILED

Others reported arrested included Ramon Calzines Gordillo, one of the 99 central committee members and head of the Cuban fruit enterprise; Gonzales Garvajal, a former officer in the Committee for the Orientation of the Revolution, which guides party publicity, and Gerardo Sanchez, a high party official in Pinar del Rio province. In addition, the sources said, an army major — Cuba's highest military rank — and a captain were jailed.

One source said the old-line Communists were accused of fighting against Castro.

Castro discussed his differences with the Soviet line in an interview published in the United States today. He said Cuba is practising "true Marxism-Leninism as we see it" while "Communist countries

HOLY LAND RIPPED BY GUNFIRE

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israeli and Jordanian troops exchanged fire across the River Jordan Wednesday night, an Israeli Army spokesman said today.

The spokesman said one Israeli soldier was killed and another wounded in the fighting some six miles north of the Damia Bridge.

He said the clash occurred when Jordanian troops opened fire to provide cover for four infiltrators who escaped across the river after firing on Israeli troops on the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan.

rye so smooth you can actually sip it straight. And like it.

It took Calvert ten years to make Grand Prix so smooth, and naturally our Master Blender is pretty proud of it.

But try it yourself. In ten seconds you'll know why he's so proud.

The name of the rye is Grand Prix. We made it incredibly smooth by making it dry. And we made it dry by discovering a new way to make rye without any cloying sweetness. This makes Grand Prix a full-bodied

Mistreatment Of Animals Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—A West Coast MP failed in his proposal Wednesday to have a Commons committee study the "brutal massacre" of animals by scientists, hunters and others.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) introduced a motion in the Commons to refer these matters to the House of Commons committee for hearings, study and recommendations:

"Treatment of animals as pets and recommendations on possible federal legislation with penalties for those abusing animals."

"The most humane method of trapping fur-bearing animals and 'consideration as to whether the Canadian seal hunt should and could on a practicable basis be discontinued."

"Consideration of the entire question of maintenance of fish, bird and animal wildlife and regulations required for conservation."

DROPS TO BOTTOM

The motion was talked out and failed to the bottom of the order paper.

Mr. Winch said he has spent a year of intense research collecting a voluminous file from resources around the world on the topic of humane treatment of animals.

There had been a "brutal massacre" of animals in North America. Sixty species of birds and animals had become extinct and another 80 were on the "danger list." He mentioned big horn sheep, grizzly and polar bears.

There was an "overwhelming evidence" that animals were not always being treated as humanely as possible. Mr. Winch said his files contain "absolutely chilling, absolutely horrifying" reports of mistreatment.

HEARD EVIDENCE

A U.S. congressional committee heard evidence of dogs being penned up for seven years without proper exercise; animals being given intermittent electric shocks over a six-month period; the legs of 400 dogs being crushed in a press without anesthetic; and dognapping, which had reached the point where a U.S. government committee has proposed legislation.

Andrew Chetwood (L—Grand Falls—White Bay—Labrador) defended Canada's seal industry.

It was well administered and supervised. He agreed the topic would be appropriate for study, but by the House fisheries committee, not the agriculture committee.

Canadians Immune To 'Flu'?

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal authorities foresee no serious influenza outbreak in Canada this winter.

Studies indicate that the population generally may have built up a high level of immunity to the Asian type flu that struck in epidemic proportions in 1957 and 1962.

More than 100 different types of virus can be confused with true influenza and federal authorities say any of these may explain the apparent upsurge of influenza in the United States.

A certain amount of flu and influenza-like respiratory illness is prevalent in Canada every winter but the chance of flu reaching serious proportions seems slight on the basis of a study here of several hundred subjects who showed a high level of flu anti-bodies in their systems.

Flu is not a disease on which provincial authorities are required to report to federal communicable diseases agencies unless it reaches epidemic proportions.

ROCKET SITE LEFT FLAMING INFERNO

Big Bombers Evoke Missiles

SAIGON (AP)—North Vietnamese gunners fired three surface-to-air missiles Wednesday night at a flight of U.S. B-52 bombers attacking the demilitarized zone separating North Vietnam and South Vietnam, but all four failed to get the high-flying, eight-engined Superfortresses with the SAM missiles.

Washington reported earlier North Vietnamese efforts in September and October, without giving details, when the Pentagon denied a Russian claim that SAMs had downed one of the American high-altitude bombers.

U.S. officers said the 500-mile-an-hour bombers, flying about six miles up, had about 30 seconds to complete evasive action after their own radar happened next in the skies over the DMZ.

The missile attack brought a swarm of U.S. fighter-bombers down on the site from which the planes were damaged, the air force did not disclose what rockets were fired.

The U.S. command said the American planes bore in with bombs, rockets and cannon fire and left the site a flaming inferno.

U.S. headquarters disclosed the missile attack at the same time it announced fierce ground battles in which South Vietnamese and the bloodied Communist units.

France, Quebec Promoting Greater Tourist Traffic

MONTREAL (CP) — Gabriel Loubier, Quebec tourism minister, said Wednesday he has concluded preliminary agreement with French government officials that could result in a "massive exchange" of French and Quebec tourists.

Speaking at an airport press conference following his return from a four-day visit to Paris, Mr. Loubier said he met with Pierre Dumas, French tourism minister, and the minister for overseas affairs to discuss prospects for a co-operative tourism program between the two governments.

With the approval of the provincial cabinet, he said, a joint scientific study by Quebec and France will be undertaken to lay the foundations for a "tourist exchange."

During his visit, French officials had asked that Quebec authorities be encouraged to promote visits by Quebec tourists to the French Caribbean islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique.

France was also prepared to provide "credit, loans and bonuses" to Quebecers who might want to invest in the two islands, Mr. Loubier said. It would be possible for French authorities to make available up to 60 per cent of the costs required to start a business in the islands.

He had also talked with officials of les Clubs méditerranées, an organization which establishes vacation areas in the countryside of various foreign coun-

Family Feud Kills 11

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — An old family feud broke out in a small village near Acapulco this weekend; 11 members of two families were killed. Reports said several members of the Soriano family were surprised Sunday by their rivals in the Figueroa family and four Sorianos were killed. That night the Soriano survivors went looking for revenge and killed five members of the Figueroa family, while losing two more of their own.

Arbitration Board Urged For Welfare

The Victoria Labour Council voted Wednesday night to support a provincial arbitration board to determine rates to be paid to welfare recipients.

The move followed an appeal by Victoria social worker Reg Clarkson to endorse the request by the Low Income Group of Greater Victoria.

The guest speaker at the meeting said present rates are insufficient and that the experience of social workers is that the recipients have to live within these rates, and not on any "overages."

Close to 1,000 families in this area depend on welfare.

A deserted wife can depend on church, neighbors or the Salvation Army but this is "insufficient in an industrial society."

"It's a cash economy. If you're poor you require money to live," he said.

In the old days, Mr. Clarkson recalled, there were the poor houses.

WERE SLAVES

The husband was sent to one poor house, his wife to another and the children were "farmed out as slaves."

It represented a get-tough attitude to the poor, and it didn't work.

"Today, the gap between the poor and the not-poor has become greater," he said.

A deserted wife with eight children would be entitled to $250 a month on welfare.

In 1965, the Community Chest in Vancouver did its regular "adequacy" survey and found the welfare rates 30 per cent below what was needed.

"Why have they not gone up since then? There have been 10 briefs from professional and lay people to the minister of social welfare asking for an increase," Mr. Clarkson said.

OTHER GRANTS

He gave these comparisons of welfare assistance and other forms of aid:

Widow under workmen's compensation: $122 a month. Under welfare: $75.

Child under workmen's compensation: $45 a month. Under welfare: $25.

If the mother on welfare gave up her child, the authorities would pay someone else $75.

Big Bribe Alleged

MONTREAL (CP) — Constable Jean-Claude Gascon said Monday suburban St. Michel Alderman Maurice Constantineau once offered him up to $100,000 if he would not testify in court against him.

Constable Gascon said he had paid the accused $1,000 to pave his way onto St. Michel police force.

Aren't you glad he cared more about coriander than everybody else?

Let's face it. A coriander doesn't look like much. Even to another coriander.

And maybe that's a big reason why English gin-makers in 1769 neglected this funny looking herb so much.

Except Alexander Gordon, a Highland Scot. He had a hunch. And it paid off. He discovered that by treating the very best coriander just right, it would give gin a wonderful new taste. That gin had never had before.

The rest is history.

200 years later, Gordon's is now the largest selling gin in the world.

And still made exactly to the same secret recipe.

Nobody else knows it. And it's not hard to understand why.

How many people do you know, who really care about what happens to a coriander?

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIRLEY POVICH

(The Washington Post)

NEW YORK—Art Lentz is the executive director of the United States Olympic Committee. As its spokesman in controversy he is taking a hard line against the threat of boycott of the 1968 games by American Negro athletes. "If it is a serious threat, and I don't believe it is, we'll simply have to get along without them," Lentz said this week.

Lentz said he is aware of injustices toward Negroes in some U.S. communities "but you won't find any in the Olympic Games. Our record for fair play can't be attacked. These people are using the Olympics as an attention-getter in their other struggles and they are being heard from here to Moscow."

Lentz wasn't calling anybody a Communist, but merely indicating that Communists were finding useful the demands made by Harry Edwards, associate sociology professor at San Jose State College who has called for the boycott. He also said that thus far there has been more noise than substance to the boycott threat.

"Who are these people talking boycott?" Lentz asked. "So far we have only three names, Edwards, and Tommie Smith and Lee Evans, the sprinters from San Jose State. Lew Alcindor, the basketball player, says he will make his decision later, and there has been no stampede to line up with the San Jose trio."

Lentz said that in the event Smith, who holds or shares world records in the sprints, and Evans, who is the world's best at a quarter-mile, refuse to compete, the United States would nevertheless field a team. "We'll just dip down into the ranks of the squad and get the next best qualifiers, who very likely will also be Negroes," he said.

Lentz recalled that Professor Edwards led a protest of housing conditions at San Jose State, charging Negro athletes were shunted to distant housing while white athletes were quartered in campus dormitories. The protest resulted in cancellation of a football game with a Texas school because feelings against discrimination were running so high.

"Professor Edwards didn't threaten to boycott the school to the extent of giving up his professorship," said Lentz. "And the two sprinters who are still protesting about discrimination at the college haven't given up their scholarships. Why not boycott where the discrimination is, instead of threatening the Olympic Games, which has been nothing but fair and useful to Negroes."

As for the six demands made by Edwards in his threat of boycott, Lentz has ridicule for most of them. "He wants us to remove Avery Brundage as president of the U.S. Olympic Committee on charges that Brundage is anti-Negro and anti-Semitic. Brundage holds no such office. The U.S. Olympic Committee president is Douglas F. Roby of Detroit. Brundage is president of the international committee, elected by all of the world's nations."

Lentz took up the demand that South Africa be excluded from the Olympics because of its apartheid policy. "South Africa has already been suspended for a year and cannot compete until it proves it does not discriminate against Negroes in its Olympic qualifying trials." The demand that Northern Rhodesia be excluded from the Olympics on the same anti-Negro basis is just as empty, Lentz said. "Northern Rhodesia has no Olympic committee, and is ineligible for the games." As for charges that the New York Athletic Club bans Negroes and Jews from membership, Lentz said, "what has the Olympic Committee got to do with that?"

The charge that there are no Negro members on the board of directors of the U.S. Olympic Committee is true, Lentz said, "and we wish it were not. We would like to have a Jesse Owens or a Ralph Metcalf, or both of these gentlemen, or others of their fine type on the board, but the Olympic Committee appoints only five members to the 52-member board. The Amateur Athletic Union elects nine and the colleges more than a dozen and 17 other groups the remainder. The Negroes' quarrel should be with those other groups."

The most absurd of Edwards' demands is that Cassius Clay's title of heavyweight champion be restored, Lentz said. "What in the world has the Olympic Committee got to do with that?" he asked. "We didn't take the title away from Clay, we can't give it back to him, and why are we being hauled into the Cassius Clay act?"

Lentz pointed out there has been no rush to join the boycott by other Negroes. What if champion sprinters Lee and Evans refuse to run for the United States? With none of the tremor of a man looking down both barrels of a loaded gun, Lentz said simply: "We'll miss them."

Buckaroo Goalie In First Shutout

PORLAND (CP)—Portland Buckaroos blanked Phoenix Roadrunners 4-0 behind goalie Jim McLeod Wednesday in the Western Hockey League's only scheduled game.

McLeod kicked out 29 shots to record his first shutout of the season.

TWO FOR SAUNDERS

Rich Van Impe in the first period, Arlo Goodwin in the second and Bill Saunders with two goals in the third period handled the scoring for the Buckaroos.

Portland will battle the WHL leading Totems in Seattle tonight in a meeting of the league's top two teams.

ONLY MOUNTIES REMAIN AS DEFENDANT IN SUIT

SEATTLE (AP)—Santiago Rosario was dismissed as a defendant in a $75,000 suit growing out of a baseball fight in 1966, leaving Vancouver Mounties Holdings, Ltd., as the last defendant.

Catcher Merritt Ranew was injured in the fight during a game May 11, 1966, at Vancouver between players of the Seattle and Vancouver teams of the Pacific Coast League.

A number of other Vancouver players and the Kansas City Athletics, with which Vancouver was associated, were named by Ranew but all have been dismissed at intervals by the King County supreme court judge hearing the case.

Duff Scores Three Goals As Canadiens Clip Leafs

By The Canadian Press

A grey ghost and a golden flash Wednesday night carried Chicago Black Hawks back to the top of the National Hockey League Eastern Division.

The ghost was Pit Martin, who came back to haunt Boston Bruins with the winning goal in their 6-3 loss to Chicago and the golden flash was Bobby Hull, who snapped a personal four-game scoring drought with two goals.

Martin, last year with the Bruins, scored what proved to be the winner, and the prop on which Chicago broke a first-place tie with Boston less than three minutes into the third period at Chicago.

Habs Finally Find Old-Time Form

Two shutouts marked the other league action as Montreal Canadiens exploded for a 5-0 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers dropped Detroit Red Wings 2-0.

In a match for last place in the Western Division, St. Louis Blues pulled two points ahead of Oakland by beating the Seals 2-1.

Perhaps the most startling result was the Montreal-Toronto score, with the Canadiens showing the form for which they've been famous for the first time this season.

Skating end-to-end and swooping down on Toronto goalies John Bower and Bruce Gamble relentlessly, the Canadiens appeared anything but the last-place team in the East.

The apparent key to the change was the insertion of Bobby Rousseau into the line of Richard and Dick Duff.

Duff wound up with three goals, Rousseau with a goal and three assists and Richard with four assists. Claude Provost scored the other Montreal goal.

The shutout, before 14,164 fans, was the third of the season for goalie Gump Worsley, pulled out of the nets in favor of Rogatien Vachon Sunday for the first time in his 15 NHL years.

GETS SECOND SHUTOUT

At New York, it was Rod Gilbert and Phil Goyette as goalie Ed Giacomin scored his second shutout of the year.

Hull and Martin got help in Chicago from Dennis Hull, with two goals, and Ken Wharram while Derek Sanderson, with two, and Tom Williams scored for Boston.

On the coast, St. Louis had two goals from rookie Frank St. Marseilles and Oakland got their only goal from Wally Boyer.

JOAN JAILED
FOR 45 DAYS

OAKLAND (UPI)—Pacifist folksinger Joan Baez and scores of carol-singing peace demonstrators arrested this week outside the Oakland induction centre will spend the holidays in jail.

Miss Baez, 26, and her mother Joan, 54, of Carmel, Calif., were among the 20 persons sentenced Tuesday and Wednesday by municipal Judge Delmar Probst to 45 days in jail for disturbing the peace.

Holy City Just Not the Same

By HAL MCCLURE

BETHLEHEM (AP) — Pilgrims celebrating Christmas in the Israeli-occupied Holy Land will discover unexpected changes in this sleepy Arab town in Jordan this year.

A new archway welcomes the visitor in English, Arabic and Hebrew.

Arab shops carry Israeli-made goods, post cards and periodicals printed in Tel Aviv—even victorious Israeli war books, with Gen. Moshe Dayan's face on the covers.

Israeli soldiers clatter through the narrow cobblestoned streets, past heavily laden donkeys with chattering Arab women returning from market.

The Star of David flutters lan-over the police station opposite the Church of the Nativity.

Gone are the barbed wire entanglements that once separated Jordan and Israel, forcing pilgrims to make a long detour. But some things never change.

Commercialism and sectarian bickering still seem to mock the joyous observance of Christ's birth at this very spot nearly 2,000 years ago.

Neon signs flicker like alien beacons over the Milk Grotto grocery and the Holy Manger store.

Hawkers cry out the praise of olivewood madonnas, mother of pearl crosses, rosaries.

The Church of the Nativity, which traces its beginnings back 1,600 years, has several chapels belonging to different faiths. Each religion jealously defends its rights, even to entering certain parts or lighting certain lamps.

A religious dispute more than 100 years ago—over the placement of a vermilion star in the Grotto of the Nativity to mark the place where the Christ child was born—was taken up by supporting governments. It helped spark the Crimean War in 1853.

A television technician more recently began setting up his equipment in the Greek Orthodox basilica and requested permission from the Armenians to connect an electric line on their side. He was briskly refused.

A few years ago while worshippers sang "Peace on earth, good will to men" in the church a group of priests battled wildly with bottles on the roof above.

Yemen Govt. Resigns

ADEN (UPI)—The six-week-old government of Prime Minister Mohsen Al-Aini of the Yemen has resigned.

A Radio Sana broadcast said it did so to smooth the way for establishment of a "war cabinet" to be headed by armed forces commander Gen. Hassan Al-Amri.

Scotch whisky

A combination of the world's greatest Scotch whiskies and a generation of aches and aggravation.

About a generation ago, our blenders started working on a pretty ambitious theory.

The theory was that if someone could take the key whiskies from the world's greatest Scotches and combine them all in one, someone would have a darn fine Scotch.

The problem was that the key whiskies he wanted were scattered from Oban on the West Coast across to Dundee on the East and the whole country above and below.

As if that wasn't enough, these whiskies turned out to be as scarce as a clear day in London. (Distillers don't exactly give away whiskies that took generations to perfect.)

All in all, it took 10 years just to assemble these whiskies. And still another 10 to combine them all in one faultless blend.

When you try our Scotch, we think you'll agree it's well worth the price. In fact, after all those years of aches and aggravation, how could you have the heart to drink anything else?

HOME GARDEN

Please Don't Eat The Berries

By HILDA BEASTALL

All northern gardeners love berries for Christmas decorating indoors, whether they are the scarlet berries of holly, mistletoe's creamy white clusters, or the orange red of the pot plant we call Jerusalem Cherry.

These three types of berries are widely used each year in one way of another to add color and interest to our festivities.

They originate in different parts of the world but all have one thing in common.

They are poisonous if eaten.

This is not written with the intent to spoil anyone's enjoyment in the sight of these lovely berries against the rich green of their own foliage, but wholly with the idea that those who read may remember the fact if they see a child putting any of these berries into its mouth.

Act quickly to prevent the child from swallowing the berries. That is all.

DON'T EAT

Many things around us are lovely to look at, useful to have as part of our lives, or contributing in some way to our well-being, yet in themselves are a potential danger if misused.

Let us not forgo the pleasure of berries in our homes at Christmas, but let us also see that no one eats them in place of the goodies we provide.

Driver Fined In Fatality

The driver of a car which struck and killed an elderly pedestrian Nov. 21 was fined $40 in central court Wednesday.

Lloyd Clarkson, 124 Haultain, pleaded guilty to failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian in a crosswalk.

The charge arose from the investigation of the accident which took the life of 85-year-old Alfred Kneen at Pandora and Stanley.

Where the Bulkley and Skeena Rivers meet at Hazelton, work will begin soon after Christmas on a project believed to be unique of its kind in North America. Its godfather, Dr. David B. Turner, deputy minister of recreation and conservation, likes to think of it as "The Indian Barker-ville".

On a tract at the tip of the 38-acre site off Highway 16 the historic Indian village of Old K'San is to be restored to the last detail.

The land at the base of the peninsula will become a campsite with a minimum of 50 tent and trailer units.

The job, billed by Ottawa as the first rural development project to be implemented in B.C. under the federal-provincial A.R.D.V.A. agreement, will cost about $120,000. It will be completed in time for our 1970 tourist season.

"And," says Dave Turner, "the splendid thing about it is that it's going to be an all-Indian story."

The project, which is expected to boost incomes from their present less-than-$3,000-a-year average, also has its godmother. Her name is Mrs. Polly Sargeant. A white woman, she has worked long and hard to help her Indian neighbors.

It was at her urging and with her help that Hazelton's good little "Skeena Treasure House" was founded; and from that museum of Indian arts and crafts, the ambitious new project stems.

RAY HADFIELD

DEADLY NUMBERS GIVEN

Motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield today said roadside suspension figures show police have cracked down on drinking drivers but the province still faces the sad prospect of a record death toll ending centennial year.

In all there were 2,674 24-hour licence suspensions throughout the province to the end of November since the roadside suspension program began this year.

These included 106 drivers who had their keys lifted after exercising their right to have a breath test which would show whether their blood-alcohol was under .08 per cent.

240 SUSPENSIONS

In Greater Victoria, where the program was put into force on April 1, there were 240 suspensions, with 11 of them involving drivers asking for a test first.

The rest of Vancouver Island was added July 1. It was extended to the lower mainland Aug. 1 and to the remainder of the province Oct. 1.

"We think this program can't have helped but be beneficial by at least reducing potential accidents by getting these people off the roads while they were in the dangerous driver range," said Mr. Hadfield.

"The reports we get indicate there have been about as many impaired driving charges laid as usual during this period so the police aren't watering down their impaired driving charges with this program."

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

"That means that perhaps 100 per cent more people were taken off the roads (under the roadside suspension program and the criminal code) than before and we've begun a good educational program by this."

"Now there is good reason for all drivers to watch very carefully how much they drink before they get behind the wheel."

Mr. Hadfield said it was gratifying to learn that Saskatchewan probably will duplicate the pioneering B.C. program at its coming legislative session.

"We think an ally in another province would take our program out of the Maverick class and if it catches on across the country, I'm sure it will add more weight here."

DEATH RECORD

Despite the crackdown on drinkers, however, Mr. Hadfield said B.C. already has broken the record for annual road fatalities and has even exceeded recent estimates.

"As of Wednesday we have had 547 fatalities and, although I hate to predict, it looks as though we may reach a total of 560 compared with 520 last year."

"It seems a sad way to end centennial year by killing so many people."

Family Flees $2,000 Fire

Saanich resident Harvey Crowe awoke to smell smoke early today in his home at 4150 Oakridge.

He led his wife and two children to safety.

Firemen said the blaze started in the living room of the 1½-storey home, causing about $2,000 damage to building and contents.

Cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Cigarette Machine Rifled by Thieves

Thieves broke into the Rice Bowl Restaurant, 2656 Quadra overnight and rifled the cigarette machine.

Nothing else was taken.

Police report the intruders smashed a window to gain entry.

100 Items To Puzzle Or Pity

BY PETE LOUDON

Visualize, if you dare, the year 2067 and the opening of the time capsule which was prepared today for burial in Centennial Garden.

"Whudat?" says the hairy, hide-clad figure who made the find while digging for edible roots.

"Dunno mebbeyeanet?" grunts his companion in Orwellian nuspeak.

Of course if atom bombs return us to the caveman age they'll probably destroy the capsule too. The concrete crypt prepared to hold the eight-foot plastic capsule isn't thought to be bomb proof.

More likely there will be a delegation of officials of the new republic who have used their jetbelts or the moving sidewalk to zip over from the capital offices deep in the Malahat.

They may be disappointed at the contents of the capsule because all the material is on microfilm and available to all citizens' home viewers from the public library.

Perhaps the man who digs it up will be unable to read the material because it's not in French.

The finder might be dark-skinned.

"Something left by those damn white men," he'll mutter.

These were the thoughts engendered this morning as B.C. Centennial chairman L.J. Wallace and provincial librarian and archivist Willard Ireland stuffed documents into the capsule. There were more than 100 items aimed at showing people 100 years from now what life was like here in 1967.

Among them are words and music for Can-na-da by Bobby Gimbley, the current national theme song, Centennial medallions, folders, guide books, calendars, flags, fashion pictures, maple leaf pins and decals, programs of centennial year events, centennial place mats, a series of historical sketches of B.C. pioneers, which appeared in the Times and other newspapers, and copies of centennial editions of newspapers.

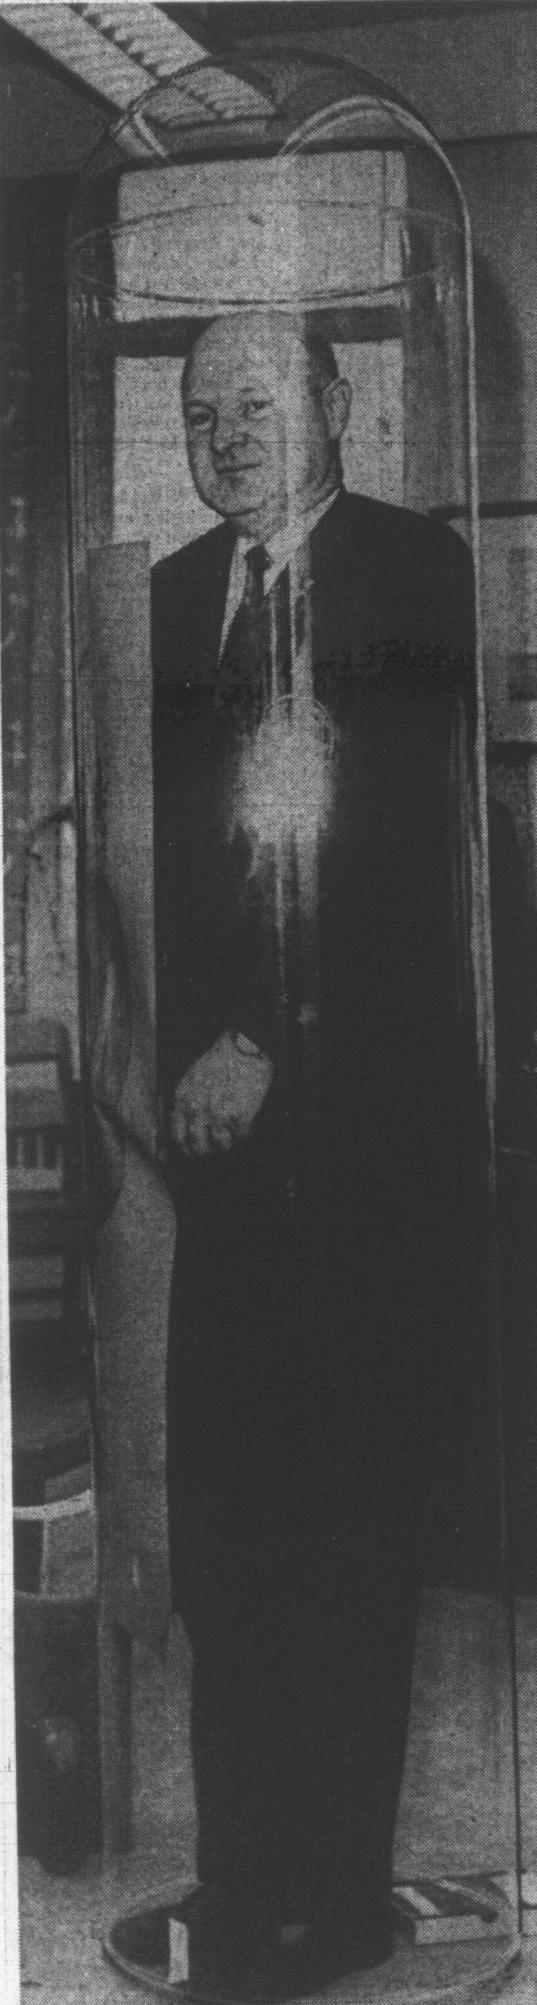

Finally, before the capsule is laid to rest, on New Year's Eve with appropriate ceremony, messages from Premier Bennett, Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Mr. Wallace will be included.

But did we store the right mementos? Perhaps there should be a picture of a traffic victim. We may have solved that problem by 2067.

Surely our descendants would marvel at hula-hoop, or a cold germ or a cancer cell. Perhaps, with pollution being what it is, they'd prize a mounted bird. They might be puzzled by a man's necklace or a brassiere.

We should put some marijuana, some LSD, a bottle of booze, a bayonet and a smidgin of napalm in there too.

Hopefully our grandchildren won't know what they are and they'll pause a moment to pity us.

SORRY LAWRIE, you won't keep. Instead of trying to preserve the British Columbia Centennial general chairman L.J. Wallace for a grand re-opening in 2067, the province filled the plastic vacuum-sealed cylinder with more than 100 items estimated to show our descendants that we had a swinging time this year. The eight-foot capsule will rest on its side on a wooden cradle in a concrete crypt under a cement slab in Centennial Garden on Menzies Street, near the west end of the Legislative Buildings. ## Suspect Appears Second Time On Charge of Possessing Drug

"My learned friend is acting as a judge," retorted Mr. Price.

"The court has not yet decided whether or not the accused has committed any offence. Until then, he has the right to be treated as innocent."

Mr. Price suggested the detention of a man with a second charge against him would leave the crown open to charges of abuse.

"It would be a simple matter for authorities to lay a second charge on the flimsiest of grounds just to get a man back in jail."

Blast Victim's Condition Fair

Burn victim David Doyle, 15, of 2780 Millsmead, is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The boy was badly burned Dec. 11 when he tried to start a fire with gasoline.

The container exploded, spraying him with burning gas.

Magistrate Ostler quoted several authorities in support of both sides of the argument and then set bail at $5,000.

Trial for the second offence was set for Jan. 18.

Dinner Treat Of Pheasant Costly Dream

A man who shot a pheasant 50 feet from where children were walking to school was fined $50 in court today.

Harry Wong, $50, Judah St., pleaded guilty to a charge under the provincial firearms act.

Court was told he shot the bird with a .22 calibre rifle from his kitchen window.

The pheasant was 500 feet away, and only 50 feet from a path used by school children.

The incident occurred Nov. 22, 20 minutes before school opened.

"They soon find that $1,000 a month under such circumstances is not extraordinary," he said.

ENTHUSIASM HIGH FOR SING-ALONG

The drums are rolling for Friday's downtown Christmas carol sing-along.

Enthusiasm among students at the four high schools leading the way is building, Reg Reid, vice-principal at Victoria Senior Secondary, said this morning.

About 250 young musicians from Vic Hi and Oak Bay senior secondary as well as Central and Oak Bay junior secondary schools will be in Centennial Square at 3 p.m. to provide the accompaniment.

Students "in large numbers" will be there too and Mr. Reid said many teachers plan on joining in.

Cheer leaders and girls from the Y Teens service club will be handing out carol sheets so the passing public can join in.

Mayor Stephen will be delivering a Christmas greeting about 3:30 p.m. Carolers won't have to rely solely on their own voice power. The Centennial Society is providing a public address system.

TO REPLACE CRYSTAL

Pool at Central Still Tops List

The long-awaited decision on the fate of the Crystal Garden area.

The city manager confirmed Ald. Ramsay's forecast that the final report would be ready early in the New Year.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, chairman of the Victoria recreation committee, said this morning that his select committee studying the Crystal problem would have its report ready for full committee and council early in January.

The select committee is comprised of Ald. Ramsay, Ald. Ian Stewart, Michael J. Griffin, city manager Dennis Young, city engineer James Garnett, director of recreational facilities Jack Morgan and city assessor Alf Joyce.

Progress of the committee's study has been delayed by the illness of Mr. Morgan.

"But I understand that Mr. Morgan, although still convalescing, has now got his section of the study in to Mr. Young," Ald. Ramsay said this morning.

"I can't say what our final decision will be because all the reports have to be studied. But our report and recommendations will be ready early in January."

SPECIAL REPORT

The select committee was struck in October after a special engineering report on the structural soundness of the Crystal raised grave doubts about its future use.

Engineers told the recreation committee that it would cost $375,450 to bring the Crystal up to minimum safety standards, $56,000 for a major overhaul and $750,000 to completely modernize the building.

The select committee was instructed to study all aspects of the report including a suggestion that the Crystal be demolished, the land on which it stands sold for commercial development and the use of the funds raised to build possibly two Olympic-sized swimming pools.

Ald. Ramsay said the possibility of a new swimming pool in the Central Park-Royal Athletic Park area remained high on the study list as an alternative to renovations on the existing building.

MAKES SENSE'

"I think now, as I did in October, that there isn't much point in putting close to $600,000 into the Crystal when for $750,000 we can get a brand new facility," Ald. Ramsay said. "It still makes better sense to me to really/seriously consider the difference."

Mr. Osland said this morning that he did not feel $275 a month for full nursing and private hospital care excessive.

"Anyone staying at a hotel for a month will find that $275 for all the services we provide is very, very reasonable," he said.

"Staying at a hotel you start with a minimum of $10 a day just for the room."

TEST CASE

Wednesday Welfare Minister Dan Campbell announced an increase in provincial payments to $245 a month for welfare patients, a $15 increase over the old rate but still $30 a month behind the established rate.

The suit against the city will be in the nature of a test case to see who is responsible for the difference.

Man Walks in Space In Your Living Room

By Penny Saver

What do you buy a space-mad child? A man from space, of course. I have a nephew who will be thrilled with his Christmas gift of a battery-operated space man who rolls along on wheeled feet, felling the enemy at regular intervals with the pair of guns that hide in the instrument panel on his chest. Each time he fires a volley he turns several full revolutions from his hips. The guns are lighted by tiny red bulbs. This man from space is amazingly realistic and costs only $5.75. Batteries are not included.

Battery-operated toys include a James Bond car for junior spies that ejects the unwanted passenger for $3.29 and a police helicopter that rolls along the ground for $3.98. The batteries are just the ordinary flashlight kind.

There are also many wind-up and friction toys. A small friction car is $1 and larger models go as high as $2.25. A wind-up robot costs $2.25.

For the little girls there are scores of dolls of all shapes and kinds. New as today, however, is a Twiggy cut-out doll with the latest mod fashions and a large mod dress for the child herself. All Twiggy's clothes punch out to save your favorite scissors. The set is $1.25 and includes pictures of this famous model for young fans.

For the child who likes to work with her hands there is a knitting ring. This is the same as the old-fashioned spool knitting but on a larger scale and includes practise wool and a pattern book for clothe-hanger covers, mittens and doll clothes. This spool costs $1.39.

Nothing keeps the winter-bound gang of youngsters quiet better than a game. Both fun and educational are travel games. One based on a pirate theme is $3.29. Another based on world geography costs $3.98.

If you would like to know where I shopped for these toys please call me at 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Designer Says, 'Feminine Figure With Bust Is Back'

Not long ago I had a fascinating visit with Edith Lances at her New York City salon. Miss Lances is a charming and interesting woman and has long been distinguished as a designer of brassieres. In fact, she has been called the "queen of brassieres" even by some of her competitors.

I had never realized what diversified problems designers of brassieres have, such as creating bras to go along with the recent flat dresses. This reminds me of the flapper era. I just read that there was actually a Boyish Form Brassiere Company at that time.

Miss Lances said, "I am happy to say that we are now deserting the immature, baby doll vogue, and are going back to the much more feminine figure with a bust."

She also told me that she has noticed an increase in the average bust size since the advent of the birth control pill. Many women who needed a B cup before now require a C or D cup. A report I saw said that the average national bra size tion disappears. It amazes Edith Lances that some girls and women will buy a brassiere without trying it on. She said, "They wouldn't buy a pair of shoes without trying them on and the proper fit of a brassiere is just as individual and important."

STEP BACK INTO ELIZABETHAN ERA

Guests attending the Christmas Day festivities at the Olde England Inn this year will be transported back into the era of the first Queen Elizabeth for a few hours.

As in the past 20 years, costumed serviteurs and "scullions" will serve a repast that will feature English cydrax as a starter, royal game soup, turnip, plum pudding laced with hard sauce, and mince pies. Organ music, played from the minstrels' gallery, will add to the occasion.

In keeping with the old traditions, a major-domo, carrying an 18th Century malacca staff as the symbol of his authority, will lead a procession of Elizabethan-garbed helpers bearing dishes, first of which will hold a boar's head decked with bay leaves and rosemary. As the procession makes its way it will sing the Boar's Head Carol.

MAGIC SHOW

Carol singing and a program by musician Frank Scott will round out the evening.

Many Victorians have arranged to attend the colorful affair. They include Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Willis, Mrs. Ann Morris, Miss R. S. Sellek, Mrs. R. S. Cradock with a party of five, Mr. and Mrs. A. ## PENNIES FROM HEAVEN

If you've ever wondered where the tradition of hanging up Christmas stockings originated, it dates back to the fourth century and St. Nicholas. He was a wealthy man, disposed to giving away gold to needy families in an unorthodox manner. One night, according to legend, Nicholas tossed some gold down a chimney. It fell into a stocking hung there to dry. So, when the children hang up their stockings at the fireplace this Christmas Eve, they will be following a tradition that is 1600 years old... only the stocking contents have changed.

DEAR ABBY...

Prayer Is Simply A Talk With God

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have long been faithful readers of your column and as I have no one to turn to in my hour of despair, I must talk to someone.

How does one go on when his faith in prayer is shattered and the bottom has fallen out of everything? I feel my life is over and even my prayers are useless now.

We adopted a little boy when he was just one week old. We loved that child more than our own flesh and blood. We prayed for him constantly. Yet, between the ages of 15 and 18 he went from skipping school to robbery to rape!

Our hearts are broken. Our son was raised in a good Christian home. We went to church every Sunday and have always set a good example. We never had tobacco or liquor in our house.

Where have our prayers gone? We cannot understand it. We are numb, sick and broken-hearted. God bless you if you can help us.

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You speak of "prayer" as though it were the premiums you paid for insurance against all ills and evils. It is not. Prayer is simply "a talk" with one's God. No amount of praying will protect another, in this case your adopted son, from the consequences of his own behavior. Each man must do his own praying. Just as each man must accept the consequences of his own acts.

I do not know where your son went wrong. But your faith in prayer should not have been shattered because he did.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "DOG TIRED" for me that if her dog is a slob, there is a good reason for it. The animal is owned by a slob. And if he is unwanted and unloved by the family (with the exception of the kids who like to play with him but refuse to care for him) she should get in touch with her Humane Society (or Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals) and let them take him off her hands.

And if the dog has suddenly become valuable, moneywise, she should place a "For Sale to a Good Home" ad in her local newspaper.

Just sign me. "PEOPLE TIRED"

TORONTO (CP) — Sharon Thompson is attractive, 22 years old and an undertaker. Sometimes she fibs about it. The dean said it was all right but that I would never find a job. You have to have a place to serve your apprenticeship. The Earle Elliott funeral home happened to have a vacancy.

Canadian School of Embalming plans to flower arrangements. Her boss adds that she's "quite a good embalmer and hairdresser and we rely a great deal on her in emergencies."

Dating presents something of a problem but Miss Thompson solves it by usually going out with other members of the profession. "It saves a lot of explaining."

Trio of Events Arranged
By Fairfield UCW Group

The Fairfield United Church. Women recently held an executive meeting, a luncheon and their annual general meeting, all in one day.

The Beacon Hill Unit served the pot-luck luncheon. Mrs. E. H. Garman and Mrs. R. Tannahill decorated the table in a Christmas theme.

Mrs. N. R. Desmond, vice-president, presided at the general meeting in the absence of president Mrs. W. R. Ireland. Committees submitted their reports for 1967. Mrs. H. V. McIvor accompanied the singing of hymns and the Beacon Hill Unit provided a skit on "Unity." Mrs. H. H. Youson was the soloist.

Officers for 1968 were installed by Dr. H. W. Kerley. They are: Honorary president, Mrs. H. W. Kerley; president, Mrs. W. R. Ireland; past president, Mrs. R. D. Osland; first vice-president, Mrs. N. R. Desmond; second vice-president, Mrs. E. V. Darling; recording secretary, Mrs. O. Barker; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. R. Hartley; treasurer, Mrs. B. C. Bracewell.

shake? Why don't you get some new shoes? Do, this, do that, do this, do that, etc." In other words, he is nagged to death, and the only way he can punish the wife is to ignore her and go around looking like a hobo.

ANOTHER MILLIONAIRE HOBO

DEAR ABBY: Recently my wife and I spent a night in Topeka, and I bought a copy of the Topeka Capitol Times. I was amused by a letter in your column from a wife whose husband was a millionaire who went around looking like a hobo. He wore suits for months without having them cleaned and pressed, didn't change his shirt for three or four days, bought the cheapest socks and underwear, etc. If my wife had not been travelling with me, I'd have sworn she wrote that letter.

Your answer was good, considering you didn't know the other side of the story, but since I do, and can speak from experience, let me back you up. The millionaire who goes around looking like a hobo does so out of protest. All he hears at home is, "Why don't you wear a freshly pressed suit? You've got a closetful. Why don't you change your shirt? You've got a drawerful. Why don't you

VON Board Hears Reports

At the recent meeting of the federal department of health board of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Mrs. S. John, one of the nurses, reported on the two days she spent at the Royal Jubilee Hospital observing new techniques and procedures of nursing care. Mrs. K. Miller reported on the two-day institute on the "unwed mother" which she attended in Vancouver.

Mrs. Charles Simpson, vice-president, chaired the meeting. Mrs. G. A. Jones, honorary secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and D. Green gave the treasurer's report. J. C. Cox gave a report on insurance and cars.

Miss Elizabeth Riddell, district director, gave the nursing report, showing that 217 more visits were made than during the same period last year. There were 67 referrals from the hospitals this month. Mrs. Thomson, the physiotherapist, made 15 visits, including nine initial assessments and three reassessments of patients.

Miss Betty Short gave lectures to the students at both St. Joseph's Hospital and the Royal Jubilee Hospital on the prenatal exercise classes.

END OF MINISKIRT FORETOLD BY FASHION PUNDIT

By ROBERT MUSSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The saddest words of tongue or pen, drawing to a close.

The hems are coming down again. A professional girl watcher uttered this epitaph for the miniskirt on the King's Road, most swinging of London's thoroughfares the other day. To a casual observer the couplet seemed premature.

Despite the cold, dozens of leggy girls were passing by, their skirts only an inch or two this side of a visit to the local police station. They vastly outnumbered the calf-length or "maxiskirts" turning up at the ratio of one or two to the block.

But the professional said the casual legmen were living in a fool's paradise. The three-year run of the great free show on London's streets (and more so in buses and subways) is drawing to a close.

"You see," said John Hurst, owner of the Rag Doll Boutique, "it's not how many miniskirts you're beginning to notice. It's who's wearing them. And I recognize some of the girls now in long coats and long skirts or culottes as the trend setters."

"They were also the first into mini and microskirts. Fashion never starts with the masses. The masses follow the leaders."

Hurst said he shared the regret Britons and tourists alike will feel at the end of such innocent pleasures as following a miniskirt up the steep steps to the top of a double-decker bus.

"It's an inexorable law of fashion," he said, "that what goes up comes down and, after a while, goes up again. Two things brought the hemlines down this time. One was the popularity of the 'Bonnie and Clyde' film with fashions of the twenties.

"The other was less romantic—it's the cold winter we're having."

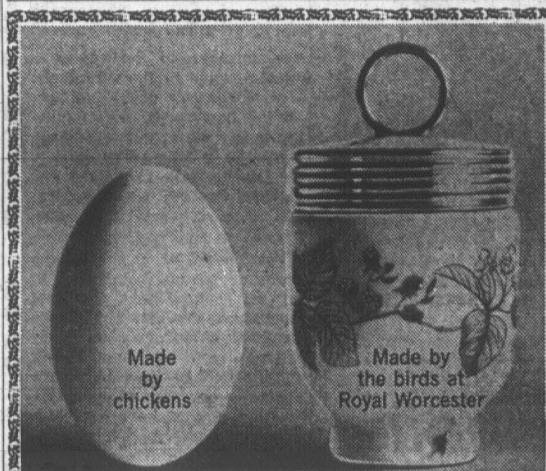

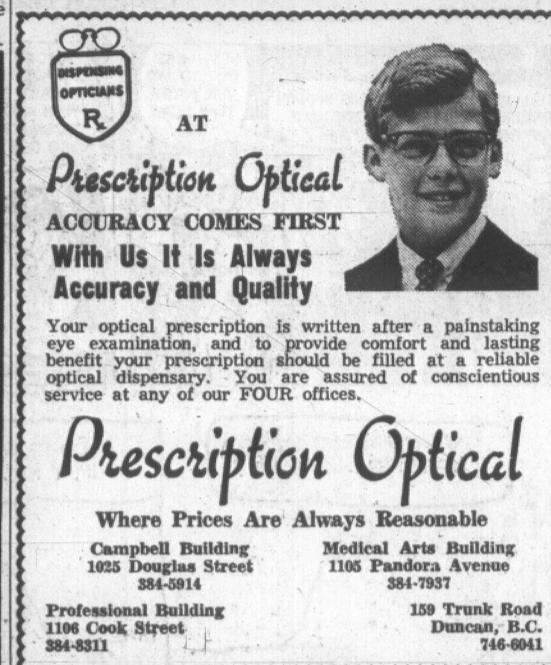

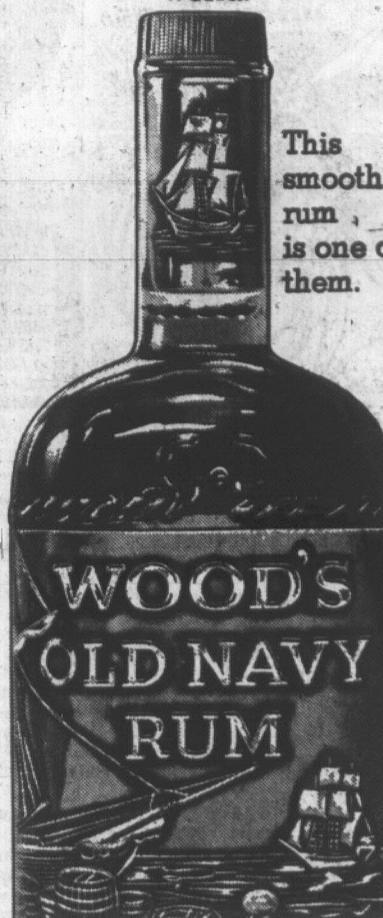

Hurst predicted that the first to follow the trendy maxiskirts—who include Brigitte Bardot, pop singer Lulu and assorted models—will be the girls with fat legs, spavined knees, bulging thighs. In brief,

Since Paris tried to lower the hemline last season and failed Hurst was asked why he thought the movement would succeed in Britain this time. "I ideas," he said, "patriotically, 'They have the fashion' but we've got the legs."

There are very few things left for the men in this world.

Site-Testing to Continue While Telescope Stalled

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The slow-down next year in work on a telescope for southern B.C. will mean putting off construction of a $1,000,000 polishing shop at the University of British Columbia, says a federal official.

The dust-free, temperature-controlled shop must be set up for a three-year job of putting a perfect surface on the telescope's 158-inch mirror.

Site testing will continue in 1968 atop Mount Kobau, a 6,000-foot mountain near Osoyoos.

Engineering work will also go ahead on design of the supporting structure for the 17-ton mirror, which has already been built by a Pennsylvania company at a cost of $1,100,000.

This part of the project, supervised by Graham Odgers, astronomer at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, is under way at Victoria.

The UBC shop's base will be to "figure" or grind the mirror from its present crude shape to a required mathematical configuration.

Using progressively finer abrasives, the polishing team will then bring the mirror surface to an accuracy of within one one-millionth of an inch.

MUST BE CAREFUL

Dr. John H. Hodgson of the energy department's observatory branch said that a single grain of abrasive larger than the abrasive being used at any given time could scratch the mirror and ruin months of work.

This will mean that the shop must have perfect environmental control throughout the procedure.

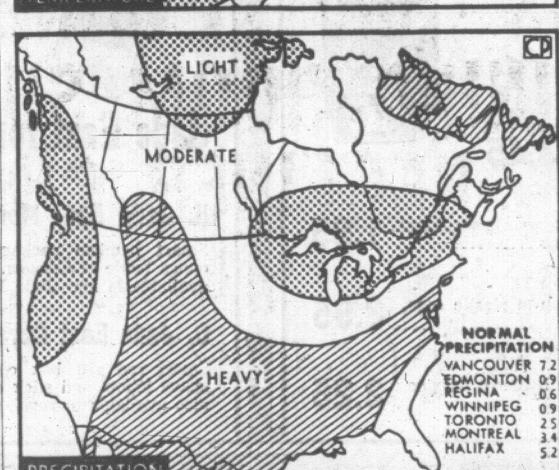

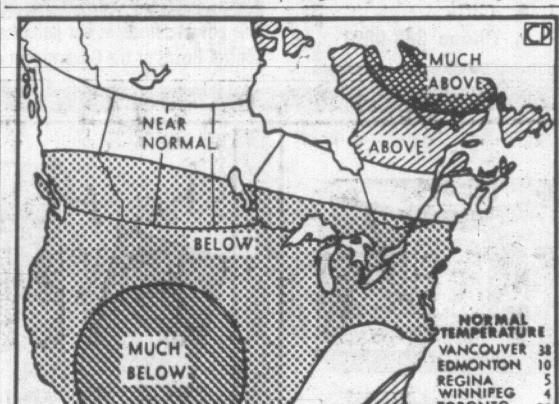

Dr. Hodgson said the mirror is being rated by astronomers as "the best mirror that has ever been built," although this is a claim virtually impossible to prove.

He said a feasibility study on the telescope's design has resulted in reports now being studied by astronomers in Europe and the United States.

The study has developed new structures for supporting the mirror and for designing the "upper end" of the telescope so that a series of 22 small mirrors can be removed and changed with ease.

All over-all cost of the telescope is estimated at $11,000,000. The stages involved in work going ahead next year will cost about $500,000.

BELOW NORMAL temperatures and light precipitation are forecast for Vancouver Island and much of Canada, according to a 30-day weather bureau prediction. (CP Newsmap)

BY N. COWICHAN COUNCIL

Hospital Urged Open Meetings'

NORTH COWICHAN — An aftermath of the election battle here is that the municipal council Wednesday unanimously agreed to ask that meetings of the Cowichan District Hospital Board be public.

The matter was raised in a letter from Crofton Ratepayers' Association.

The ratepayers said, "In view of the alleged statements regarding the affairs of the new regional hospital (one candidate referred to hospital board cocktail parties and a cruise and unnecessary construction expenditures), we ask the municipal representative to clear this up."

Association secretary Y. Drenan said, "I feel the chairman of the board (reeveship candidate Claude Green) owes it to himself and fellow members to see that no item reflecting doubt is left unanswered."

Coun. George Whittaker (whose wife was the third reeveship candidate) said, "The ratepayers might be satisfied if we can persuade the board to hold its meetings in public."

"Any public board should make its mistakes in public. If the meetings were held in public things which might be misunderstood would be more carefully done. Matters would receive greater thought."

Reeve Donald Morton said he intends appointing Coun. Margaret Robertson to succeed Mr. Whittaker as council representative to the board.

The motion to ask the board to hold its meetings in public was proposed by Coun. Gerry Smith and seconded by Mr. Whittaker.

Mr. Whittaker said an urgent reason for the change is that

Bus Pressed Into Service At New School

NORTH COWICHAN — In falling snow this morning children attending the opening day of the new Alec Aitken Elementary School on Roome Road went by bus.

This is a temporary arrangement until the municipality builds a footpath along Lakes Road.

A delegation of 50 parents Monday night succeeded in changing the mind of Cowichan School Board and getting the bus service.

Wednesday afternoon these same parents were represented only by Dr. Owen Closter at a meeting of the municipal council.

He urged the footpath be completed as soon as possible and said there was intense feeling among parents for the safety of their children.

WORK STARTED

Reeve Donald Morton said work has started on the footpath.

But public works chairman, Coun. George Whittaker, must have foreseen the overnight snow.

He said weather could delay construction and would not go beyond his previous assurance the footpath will be ready by Mar. 1.

He said, "It's too bad if the parents have the idea we are not concerned with their children's safety."

"The school board reconsidered its rejection of temporary bus service after being urged by the council."

Council rejected a school board request that it pay half the cost of the temporary bus service.

There are many problems facing farmers in today's fast-changing world. One of these is the growing list of substitute foods. In the following article, the last of two, Times reporter Humphrey Davy discusses the subject.

By HUMPHREY DAVY

If Merlin the Magician was alive today, he couldn't do any better than what biochemists are doing to create new foods.

While public attention has focused on more spectacular scientific developments, such as satellites and super-jets, food production methods have been revolutionized.

Many of the "substitute foods" are expected in Victoria stores early next year.

And nobody knows where the imitation food business will end.

In England a development is taking place which no one would have thought possible a few years ago. British Petroleum Ltd. will soon start building a refinery plant to produce by 1970 more than 16,000 tons a year of protein concentrates from mineral oil.

Initially this will be used for animal feeding but scientists think it is possible to use the protein for human consumption.

Biochemists predict the new foods will change eating habits.

However, of more immediate concern to farmers are the latest creations—imitation milk, cheese, ice cream and creams—which are expected here in a few months.

The impact these food sub-

Substitute Milk Products To Hit Stores Early in '68

On the other hand, he said, the imitation food products would serve a useful purpose to mankind—and may be the answer to world food shortages.

They would be used by people with lesser means and would provide them with a balanced diet.

This may be so, but no one knows yet what far-reaching effects the substitutes will have on the dairy industry.

One thing is certain. And that is Victorians will hear more and more about substitute food products. The change-over from natural to substitute products may be slow and sales may not go beyond a certain level, but they are here to stay.

Christmas Entertainment?

NORTH COWICHAN — A little history was made at the meeting of the North Cowichan council when the public seats were filled by Grades 5 and 6 from nearby Somenos School.

Principal Henry Spencer said the student visits to see municipal government in action will be repeated.

JANUARY START LIKELY ON SOUTH END SEWER

NORTH COWICHAN — Work should start early in the new year on construction of the south end sewer.

Bids opened at the Wednesday meeting of the municipal council were passed to the public works committee and engineer for study and action.

Low tender price was $418,805. from Chew Excavating, Ltd., of Victoria. There was a total of six bids, with the highest $488,980.

In a reference to defeated bylaws, Coun. Dennis Hogan said: "Once again delays are proving expensive."

A south end sewer bylaw was defeated three times before council decided to install the sewer as a local improvement. Reeve Donald Morton said the two-year delay may have cost the municipality as much as $70,000.

Estimated cost was $400,000.

Doesn't Cost Money? He Can Push Button

CAMPBELL RIVER — The handling fire calls in the Willow Point district.

Coun. Forde, who is also chairman of that fire district, told the last meeting that the RCMP were willing to take Willow Point's fire calls and turn on the alarm provided council gave permission.

But council's solicitor, Anthony Sarich, advised against it because it is not in the RCMP contract.

"You are asking the municipality to subsidize the Willow Point fire department," said the fire chief in opposing the idea.

There followed a heated argument on the merits of Willow Point having its own fire department, not joining the Campbell River department or at least using its answering service.

There was no expense involved, claimed Coun. Forde. It only involved the RCMP officer on duty answering the call and pushing a button.

After Councillors Wallace Baikie and Bud Adams objected to the debate because it did not relate to business before the meeting, council approved a motion granting RCMP authority to take the fire calls "at no cost to the municipality."

NANAIMO — Log salvage operator David Walter Miazgar had drunk the equivalent of 18 bottles of beer when police stopped his car, magistrate's court was told Tuesday. Miazgar was jailed for seven days. He will be released one minute after midnight Christmas morning.

10 Times the Value

NANAIMO (CP)—Magistrate Eric Winch Wednesday fined Christie R. Peters $84 for the theft of a pair of gloves from a department store. The magistrate said the fine was set at $84 by following a system used in Toronto, where offenders are charged a minimum of $25 plus 10 times the value of the stolen goods.

"heart transplantation operations, strictly speaking, are still not permissible in clinical practice," the Soviet news agency Tass reported.Prof. Yuri Lopukhin, rector of Moscow's Medical InstituteNumber Two, speaking before the death of pioneer hearttransplant patient Louis Washkansky was reported, said even if that operation were successful,"this success will be accidental."Lopukhin paid tribute to the courage and skill of Prof.Christian Barnard, who headed the heart transplant team at

hospital.

Lopukhin said heart transplant methods have been thoroughly worked out in theSoviet Union, but there still are many difficulties.He said his views were supported by numerous exper-iments on animals made in Soviet clinics.

LABOR RENEWS BID
FOR B.C. HANSARDAnother call was made Wednesday night for a written record of debates in the British Columbia Legislature.

Council secretary Larry Ryan recalled Mr.

Bennett has said people aren't interested in such a written record.

"The premier obviously doesn't want the people to know what goes on in the House," he said.

Area MLAs and affiliated trade unions will

'INDECENT, IMMORAL AND REPULSIVE'

Near-Million Spent on Two CBC Dramas

OTTAWA (CP) — The public-owned CBC and National as "indecent, immoral and repulsive." Film Board paid a total of $831,813 for two recent films described by Senator Edgar

Fournier (PC—New Brunswick) He made the statement after Senator John Connally, government leader in the Senate, gave

"I never thought I would live to see the day when so much public funds, your money and mine, was spent to produce such degrading pictures," he told the Senate Tuesday.

The replies showed the

for Caroline was $319,768, but final cost was $511,252. For The Ernie Game, the authorized budget was $265,621 but final cost totaled $320,561.

Both films were shown during November on the CBC's Festival television series.

Waiting for Caroline explored

Canada Walker On Way Home After Safari

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hank Gallant, 24, a Prince George construction worker, is on his way home after a 5,226-mile walk from Victoria to Bonavista Nfld.

Mr. Gallant passed through Vancouver after completing a private Centennial project in which he traversed Canada by foot.

He refused to set foot in an automobile anywhere along the way during the 10-month trip. He started out with $280 and worked a total of 50 days along the route to replenish funds.

The Prince Edward Island Centennial committee paid his rail fare back to Vancouver. Mr. Gallant was born at Tignish Village, P.E.I., and made a special side trip to his birth place.

DARING YOUNG GIRL in the 1920s aviator gear about to take off in a biplane, is typical flapper of the period, Julie Andrews. It's an episode from the Universal musical, Thoroughly Modern Millie which will open at the Haida Theatre, Friday. A modern technicolor look at the hectic twenties, it stars, besides Julie, Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Channing, James Fox and Beatrice Lillie.

Two Students Win Awards

Two Island residents attending the University of British Columbia have been awarded $300 scholarships by the Fanning Tractor and Equipment Company.

They are David Jamieson of Port Alberni, a student of forest engineering, and Richard Bowering of Victoria, studying civil engineering.

Library Closed On Boxing Day

The Greater Victoria Public Library said today that all its branches will be closed Monday, Christmas Day, and Tuesday, Boxing Day.

YULE BOYCOTT

They Dream
Of a Black Christmas

By KEN HARTNETT

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Black is the color of Christmas in Milwaukee's Inner Core this year.

A proposed boycott of downtown merchants has grown into a campaign aimed at persuading Negroes to forego all traditions this holiday.

"We have asked our customers, and more were against the idea of putting them (decorations) up than were for it," said Toran's wife.

It is all part of the protest campaign of the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for an all-inclusive open-housing ordinance.

NOT ENOUGH

The city council adopted a limited ordinance after more than 100 straight days of street marches. But the ordinance was not enough to stop the demonstrations which began last August, or head off Black Christmas.

"It's going mellow," said Lee McGhee, vice-president of the Youth Council. "Everyone is wishing everyone a black Christmas."

McGhee and others involved see the campaign as the expression of a growing sense of black awareness which, they say, emerged in the wake of summer rioting that left four dead and scores injured in Milwaukee.

"Black is beautiful" is the theme of the open housing marches, led by a white Roman Catholic priest, Rev. James E. Groppi, who says of the boycott:

"Our position is that we're holding our dollar bills. We're returning to the essential meaning of Christmas, without commercialism. It's a sacrifice for brotherhood."

The impact, if any, of the boycott on Milwaukee's downtown merchants will not be measurable until after the holiday. White merchants have said the number of shoppers downtown is about 20 per cent below normal.

However, it is not clear whether this decline is a result of the boycott or of other factors, such as expansion of suburban shopping centres.

10 INCHES AT ALBERNI AS ISLAND HARD HIT

Cars Claw Up ... And Skate Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — A heavy coating of damp snow clogged Lower B.C. Mainland rush hour traffic this morning. But the weatherman has warned that those people dreaming of a white Christmas are likely to be disappointed.

Police warned drivers without snow tires or chains to stay home as traffic clawed up hills and skated down.

Major traffic snarls occurred at several points in Vancouver as many drivers ventured out without snow tires. Traffic on both the Port Mann and Deas Freeway was considerably slowed by the storm.

On the Deas many vehicles slithered off the hardtop, but traffic mainly kept up to 40 m.p.h. On the Port Mann, traffic was down to 10 m.p.h. at times.

One woman was shaken up but not hurt when her car went out of control down a Vancouver hill, ran through a yard, and crashed into a house.

Sanding crews were out in force in most municipalities.

The snowstorm raised Vancouver temperatures, however. The overnight low was 25 degrees, compared with 16.2 Wednesday morning — a record for Dec. 20.

Forecasters predict that though up to six inches of snow may fall, temperatures will continue to rise, and tomorrow it will be rain instead.

LBJ AND THIEU:

'Saigon Willing To Meet Cong'

By MERRIMAN SMITH

CAN BERRA (UPI) — President Johnson and President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam announced today Saigon leaders were willing to meet with Viet Cong representatives on "relevant matters" including peace.

A joint communiqué was seen as an effort to dispel published reports of a Washington-Saigon conflict over the "question of peace negotiations between the South Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front (NLF) — the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The statement was released after a two-hour meeting between Johnson and Thieu at the U.S. embassy.

"President Thieu reaffirmed a willingness to discuss relevant matters with any individuals now associated with the so-called National Liberation Front while making it clear that his government could not regard the Front as an independent organization in any sense," the communiqué said.

NEW BILL

Sex Acts, Lotteries, Abortions

OTTAWA (CP) — Homosexual acts between consenting adults would no longer be illegal under a Criminal Code amendment given first reading in the Commons Thursday.

Another new section of the code would permit federal or provincial lotteries or those conducted by charitable or religious organizations, agricultural fairs or exhibitions or persons licensed by a province.

Abortions would be made legal where a hospital therapeutic abortion committee certified in writing that continuation of the pregnancy would likely endanger the health of the mother.

The changes are contained in a 73-page omnibus bill containing a number of amendments to the Criminal Code.

PROVISION RELAXED

The section would no longer apply where the acts took place between two consenting adults over 21 years of age.

It would apply if more than two persons were present, if threats were used, or if one of the adults was insane or feeble-minded.

Another amendment would require breath analysis tests for persons suspected of impaired driving.

If a person had consumed alcohol so that his blood count exceeded 100 milligrams of alcohol in 100 millilitres of blood, he would be guilty of an indictable offence.

A first offence would call for a fine of between $50 and $500 or imprisonment for three months, or both. A second offence would call for a jail term of between 14 days and three months. Each subsequent offence would require a jail sentence of three months to one year.

Failure to accept the breath analysis test without reasonable excuse would be made an offence punishable on the same scale as impaired driving.

Canada Sells Gold to U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has sold the United States $100,000,000 worth of gold to support the U.S. dollar, Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons today.

The gold was part of Canada's official exchange fund, and proceeds of the sale have been invested on behalf of the fund in short-term securities.

Mr. Sharp told questioners Canada has made similar though smaller, sales in the past for the same purpose.

Pneumonia in Lungs Kills Washkansky

CAPE TOWN (CP) — Dr. Christian N. Barnard said today the death of the world's first heart transplant patient left no evidence that heart transplants should be discontinued.

Dr. Barnard, who performed the heart transplant of Louis Washkansky Dec. 3, said a post-mortem produced no clinical evidence that rejection played a part in the patient's death.

"As soon as the occasion arises we will do the next heart transplant," Barnard told a news conference less than eight hours after Washkansky, 53, died in Groote Schuur Hospital.

Earlier Washkansky's anesthetist reported that the transplanted heart worked well until the very end and that the post-mortem indicated the patient died of a severe localized infection of the lungs — pneumonia.

Asked if he considered Washkansky's death "negated the experiment" Dr. Barnard replied: "Firstly, I would not consider it an experiment — it was a

of a procedure." Dr. Martinus C. Botha, a pathologist, also said at this stage treatment for a sick patient.

"Clinically the cause of death was respiratory failure due to bilateral pneumonia. This was confirmed at post-mortem by Professor J. G. Thomson."

Asked if he considered Washkansky's death "negated the experiment" Dr. Barnard replied:

"Firstly, I would not consider it an experiment — it was a treatment for a sick patient."

"Infection There From Start

"The problem of infection was loaded against the surgical team."

Washkansky had an infected leg and diabetes.

Thomson said that had pneumonia not played a part there would have lived for a few years.

The post-mortem showed Washkansky had sustained an unusually heavy attack of pneumonia, he said.

In cases of heart disease there were changes in the liver, but the post-mortem on Washkansky showed the new heart had below the chest "in a small way" but Washkansky was otherwise as clean as a whistle," the doctor said.

Conscious Wednesday Night

Washkansky, except for periods of sleep, remained conscious most of Wednesday night and his pulse rate was strong until just before death, Dr.

'Friendly Five' to Talk With Britain About ECM

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns said here today that the problem of British membership in the market, said the French refusal to open negotiations was a "grave hour in the post-war history of Europe."

His government was "profoundly shocked" by the French attitude, he said.

He said his government did not consider that the membership applications were rejected and that each market member could raise the admission question at any time.

Nor did the Netherlands consider the present structure of the market as the ideal of a united Europe, he added.

Luns said that it was important not only that Britain and the other applicants should keep in touch with the market countries, but also that they should not turn their back on the Community.

He said his government learned with satisfaction of the British decision to keep its application in force and said that a later positive reply from the Common Market Ministerial Council still is possible.

In London Foreign Secretary Brown indicated Britain will seek to head a coalition in Europe against France, whose veto keeps it out of the Common Market.

Discussing Tuesday's second veto by France of Britain's bid to enter the Common Market, Brown told the House of Commons Britain will continue working with the five Common Market nations backing its membership in the six-nation economic bloc so it can join as a full member.

The coalition he has in mind is the five Common Market members; Ireland and the nations belonging to the European Free Trade Association—EFTA—who also want to join the Common Market.

Nine-year-old David was very concerned when he saw a picture of a half-starved little Indian girl in The Times.

Arthur Mayse

Where the Bulkley and Skeena Rivers meet at Hazelton, work will begin soon after Christmas on a project believed to be unique of its kind in North America. Its godfather, Dr. David B. Turner, deputy minister of recreation and conservation, likes to think of it as "The Indian Barker-ville".

On a tract at the tip of the 38-acre site off Highway 16 the historic Indian village of Old K'San is to be restored to the last detail.

The land at the base of the peninsula will become a campsite with a minimum of 50 tent and trailer units.

The job, billed by Ottawa as the first rural development project to be implemented in B.C. under the federal-provincial A.R.D.V.A. agreement, will cost about $120,000. It will be completed in time for our 1970 tourist season.

"And," says Dave Turner, "the splendid thing about it is that it's going to be an Indian story."

The project, which is expected to boost incomes from their present less-than-$3,000-a-year average, also has its godmother. Her name is Mrs. Polly Sargeant. A white woman, she has worked long and hard to help her Indian neighbors.

It was at her urging and with her help that Hazelton's good little "Skeena Treasure House" was founded; and from that museum of Indian arts and crafts, the ambitious new project stems.

What's planned is a living museum. There, towered over by their authentic totem poles, villagers will re-create two phases of K'san's history in long houses built and roofed with cedar in the primitive manner.

The first house will reproduce the "cedar bark culture" of the Indian Stone Age down to its last detail.

In the second, visitors will view life as the Gitxsans lived it after the first traders came among them with blankets, iron cooking kettles and muskets.

The Skeena Treasure House, picked up and plunked down several hundred yards from its present location, will form the nucleus of yet another building.

Here, Indian craftsmen and artists will put their skills to profitable use. In this, they will be aided by a training program to begin after the Christmas season, when coast carvers and painters will be sent to Hazelton as instructors.

Training in operating and maintaining the campsite will be administered by Provincial Parks Branch experts.

ARDVA is a three-way deal. In addition to help from central and provincial governments, the area chosen must stir about for itself.

The regional Indian Band Council under Chief Howard Wale—himself a carver of note—has bought back all hereditary rights to peninsula land from native owners.

In cash and kind, including the $8,000 Skeena Treasure House, a Hazelton population of 400 has raised a $30,000 stake for the venture.

Buildings will probably be completed and training programs wound up by fall of next year. But winter comes early to that country, and the official opening will be held over until the following spring.

When he had laid out the project for me, Dave Turner leaned back in a chair which will not be his for many months more. After 20 years in government service, 10 of them as a notably hard-working deputy minister, he is within sight of retirement.

"I look on the reconstruction of Old K'san as my swan song," said the man who more than any other was responsible for our Barker-ville and Fort Steele restorations.

"I'm packing it up next year." He struck a match for his pipe, and said through a puff of smoke, "Those Gitxsans are a proud people. This project will be all theirs, and it's going to make them a lot prouder."

RAY HADFIELD

DEADLY NUMBERS GIVEN

Motor Vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield today said roadside suspension figures show police have cracked down on drinking drivers but the province still faces the sad prospect of a record death toll ending centennial year.

In all there were 2,674 24-hour licence suspensions throughout the province to the end of November since the roadside suspension program began this year.

These included 106 drivers who had their keys lifted after exercising their right to have a breath test which would show whether their blood-alcohol was under .08 per cent.

240 SUSPENSIONS

In Greater Victoria, where the program was put into force on April 1, there were 240 suspensions, with 11 of them involving drivers asking for a test first.

The rest of Vancouver Island was added July 1. It was extended to the lower mainland Aug. 1 and to the remainder of the province Oct. 1.

"We think this program can't have helped but be beneficial by at least reducing potential accidents by getting these people off the roads while they were in the dangerous driver range," said Mr. Hadfield.

"The reports we get indicate there have been about as many impaired driving charges laid as usual during this period so the police aren't watering down their impaired driving charges with this program.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

"That means that perhaps 100 per cent more people were taken off the roads (under the roadside suspension program and the criminal code) than before and we've begun a good educational program by this.

"Now there is good reason for all drivers to watch very carefully how much they drink before they get behind the wheel."

Mr. Hadfield said it was gratifying to learn that Saskatchewan probably will duplicate the pioneering B.C. program at its coming legislative session.

"We think an ally in another province would take our program out of the Maverick class and if it catches on across the country, I'm sure it will add more weight here."

DEATH RECORD

Despite the crackdown on drinkers, however, Mr. Hadfield said B.C. already has broken the record for annual road fatalities and has even exceeded recent estimates.

"As of Wednesday we have had 547 fatalities and, although I hate to predict, it looks as though we may reach a total of 560 compared with 520 last year."

"It seems a sad way to end centennial year by killing so many people."

Thieves broke into the Rice Bowl Restaurant, 2556 Quadra, overnight and rifled the cigarette machine.

Nothing else was taken.

100 Items To Puzzle Or Pity

By PETE LOUDON

Visualize, if you dare, the year 2067 and the opening of the time capsule which was prepared today for burial in Centennial Garden.

"Whudat," says the hairy, hide-clad figure who made the find while digging for edible roots.

"Dunno meboyaneat?" grunts his companion in Orwellian muspeak.

Of course if atom bombs return us to the caveman age they'll probably destroy the capsule too. The concrete crypt prepared to hold the eight-foot plastic capsule isn't thought to be bomb proof.

More likely there will be a delegation of officials of the new republic who have used their jetbets or the moving sidewalk to zip over from the capital offices deep in the Malahat.

They may be disappointed at the contents of the capsule because all the material is on microfilm and available to all citizens' home viewers from the public library.

Perhaps the man who digs it up will be unable to read the material because it's in English.

"Something left by those damn white men," he'll mutter.

These were the thoughts engendered this morning as B.C. Centennial chairman L.J. Wallace and provincial librarian and archivist Willard Ireland stuffed documents into the capsule. There were more than 100 items aimed at showing people 100 years from now what life was like here in 1967.

Among them are words and music for Can-ada by Bobby Gimby, the current national theme song, Centennial medallions, folders, guide books, calendars, flags, fashion pictures, maple leaf pins and decals, programs of centennial year events, centennial place mats, a series of historical sketches of B.C. pioneers which appeared in the Times and other newspapers and copies of centennial editions of newspapers.

Finally, before the capsule is laid to rest, on New Year's Eve with appropriate ceremony, messages from Premier Bennett, Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Mr. Wallace will be included.

But did we store the right mementos? Perhaps there should be a picture of a traffic victim. We may have solved that problem by 2067.

Surely our descendants would marvel at hula-hoop, or a cold-germ or a cancer cell. Perhaps, with pollution being what it is, they'd prize a mounted bird. They might be puzzled by a man's necklace or a brassiere.

We should put some marijuana, some LSD, a bottle of booze, a bayonet and a smidgin of napalm in there too.

Hopefully our grandchildren won't know what they are and they'll pause a moment to pity us.

As of Wednesday we have had 547 fatalities and, although I hate to predict, it looks as though we may reach a total of 560 compared with 520 last year.

"It seems a sad way to end centennial year by killing so many people."

SORRY LAWRIE, you won't keep. Instead of trying to preserve the British Columbia Centennial general chairman L.J. Wallace for a grand re-opening in 2067, the province filled the plastic vacuum-sealed cylinder with more than 100 items estimated to show our descendants that we had a swinging time this year. The eight-foot capsule will rest on its side on a wooden cradle in a concrete crypt under a cement slab in Centennial Garden on Menzies Street, near the west end of the Legislative Buildings. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Suspect Appears Second Time On Charge of Possessing Drug

Bail was set at $5,000 in central court today for a youth appearing on a second marijuana charge in six days.

Roy Stewart, 20, of 67 Menzies, pleaded not guilty to possession of marijuana. Monday, he pleaded not guilty to a charge of trafficking.

Stewart was arrested last Friday after police raided several homes in a large-scale roundup of drug suspects.

He was released on $2,000 bail and the trial was set for Jan. 2.

When defence counsel Robert Price asked for bail to be set in today's charge, prosecutor Roy Taylor objected.

"The accused was out on bail on a serious drug charge," he said, "and it is apparent he has no intention of remaining a law abiding citizen."

Blast Victim's Condition Fair

Burn victim David Doyle, 15, of 2780 Millstream, is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The boy was badly burned Dec. 11 when he tried to start a fire with gasoline.

The container exploded, spraying him with burning gas.

Magistrate Ostler quoted several authorities in support of both sides of the argument and then set bail at $5,000. Trial for the second offence was set for Jan. 18.

Dinner Treat Of Pheasant Costly Dream

A man who shot a pheasant 50 feet from where children were walking to school was fined $50 in central court today.

Harry Wong, 58, of Judah St., pleaded guilty to a charge under the provincial firearms act.

Court was told he shot the bird with a .22 calibre rifle from his kitchen window.

The pheasant was 500 feet away, and only 50 feet from a path used by school children.

The incident occurred Nov. 22, 20 minutes before school opened.

"They soon find that $1,000 a month under such circumstances is not extraordinary," he said.

TEST CASE

Wednesday Welfare Minister Dan Campbell announced an increase in provincial payments to $245 a month for welfare patients, a $15 increase over the old rate but still $30 a month behind the established rate.

The suit against the city will be in the nature of a test case to see who is responsible for the difference.

Mr. Ostler said this morning that he did not feel $275 a month for full nursing and private hospital care excessive.

"Any one staying at a hotel for a month will find that $275 for all the services we provide is very, very reasonable," he said.

"Staying at a hotel you start with a minimum of $10 a day just for the room."

$1,000 A MONTH

Mr. Ostler noted that on occasion people complained about private hospital rates and rejected them to remain at home under private nursing care.

"They soon find that $1,000 a month under such circumstances is not extraordinary," he said.

He was sent home after treatment for a leg injury.

The accident happened on Cook Street at The Rise shortly after 8 a.m.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Man Walks in Space In Your Living Room

By Penny Saver

What do you buy a space-mad child? A man from space, of course. I have a nephew who will be thrilled with his Christmas gift of a battery-operated space man who rolls along on wheeled feet, felling the enemy at regular intervals with the pair of guns that hide in the instrument panel on his chest. Each time he fires a volley he turns several full revolutions from his hips. The guns are lighted by tiny red bulbs. This man from space is amazingly realistic and costs only $5.75. Batteries are not included.

Battery-operated toys include a James Bond car for junior spies that ejects the unwanted passenger for $3.29 and a police helicopter that rolls along the ground for $3.98. The batteries are just the ordinary flashlight kind.

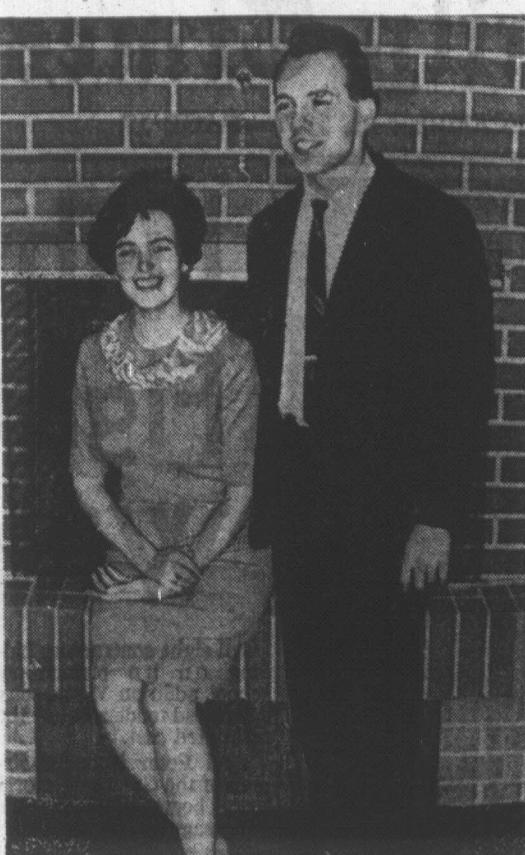

There are also many wind-up and friction toys. A small friction car is $1 and larger models go as high as $2.25. A wind-up robot costs $2.25.

For the little girls there are scads of dolls of all shapes and kinds. New as today, however, is a Twigg cut-out doll with the latest mod fashions and a large mod dress for the child herself. All Twigg's clothes punch out to save your favorite scissors. The set is $1.29 and includes pictures of this famous model for young fans.

For the child who likes to work with her hands there is a knitting ring. This is the same as the old-fashioned spool knitting but on a larger scale and includes practise wool and a pattern book for clother-hanger covers, mittens and doll clothes. This spool costs $1.39.

Nothing keeps the winter-bound gang of youngsters quiet better than a game. Both fun and educational are travel games. One based on a pirate theme is $3.29. Another based on world geography costs $3.98.

If you would like to know where I shopped for these toys please call me at 382-3131.

Designer Says, 'Feminine Figure With Bust Is Back'

Not long ago I had a fascinating visit with Edith Lances at her New York City salon. Miss Lances is a charming and interesting woman and has long been distinguished as a designer of brassieres. In fact, she has been called the "queen of brassier-sieres" even by some of her competitors.

I had never realized what diversified problems designers of brassieres have, such as creating bras to go along with the recent flat dresses. This reminds me of the flapper era. I just read that there was actually a boyish Form Brassiere Company at that time.

Miss Lances said, "I am happy to say that we are now deserting the immature, baby doll vogue, and are going back to the much more feminine figure with a bust."

She also told me that she has noticed an increase in the average bust size since the advent of the birth control pill. Many women who needed a B cup before now require a C or D cup. A report I saw said that the average national bra size has changed from a 34 to a 36. There is no actual increase in breast tissue, but the pills promote fluid retention. When they are discontinued, the inflation disappears.

It amazes Edith Lances that some girls and women will buy a brassiere without trying it on. She said, "They wouldn't buy a pair of shoes without trying them on and the proper fit of a brassiere is just as individual and important."

STEP BACK INTO ELIZABETHAN ERA

Guests attending the Christmas Day festivities at the Old England Inn this year will be transported back into the era of the first Queen Elizabeth for a few hours.

As in the past 20 years, costumed servitors and "scullions" will serve a repast that will feature English cydrex as a starter, royal game soup, turkey, plum pudding laced with hard sauce, and mince pies. Organ music, played from the minstrels' gallery, will add to the occasion.

In keeping with the old traditions, a major-domo, carrying an 18th Century malaca staff as the symbol of his authority, will lead a procession of Elizabethan-garbed helpers bearing dishes, first of which will hold a boar's head decked with bay leaves and rosemary. As the procession makes its way it will sing the Boar's Head Carol.

MAGIC SHOW

Carol singing and a program by magician Frank Scott will round out the evening.

Many Victorians have arranged to attend the colorful affair. They include Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Willis, Mrs. Ann Morris, Miss R. S. Sellek, Mrs. R. S. Cradock with a party of five, Mr. and Mrs. A. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. E. Chesson, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Collom, Mr. and Mrs. E. Heatherfield, Mrs.

Charlotte Knapp, Jane A. Tyrer, all of Ellensburg; Mike and Barbara Knapp of Seattle.

Other guests from out of town will be Mr. and Mrs. R. Bailey and sons of Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Odell and family of Renton, Wash.; Mrs. M. Steel and Mrs. M. Burger of Washougal, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Reed and son of Tacoma, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Murie of Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. C. Stastney, Mr. and Mrs.

Miss Ruth Sharpe.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hamill, 414 Mary Street, will mark their golden wedding anniversary this coming Sunday. They were married in Leigh, Lancs., England, on Christmas Eve, 1917. They came to Canada in 1923, living at the Up-Island centre of Wellington until they moved to Victoria in 1930. To mark the anniversary, the couple will be entertained at a family dinner in the Princess Mary Restaurant on Saturday by their two children, Frank, and Mrs. Alf (Mary) Larsen. There are seven grandchildren. The Hamills will hold open house on their anniversary from 2 to 6 p.m. Mr. Hamill worked for the Canadian Pacific Railway for 33 years, retiring in 1958, and served with the Irish Guards during the First World War. His wife was a munitions worker. She is now a keen gardener, while Mr. Hamill is a member of Victoria West Lawn Bowling Club, Knights of Columbus and the C.P.R. Pensioners' Association.

Staff of the Veterans Hospital Celebrate in Unusual Manner

By PAT DUFOUR

One of the facets of the Christmas season is the prolific width of parties, each designed to increase and make friendships.

The staff of the Veterans' Hospital are holding such a party this week. It began on Wednesday at 3 p.m. and continues today and tomorrow.

Apart from the time duration, this party has another feature that makes it different from any other in the city. In actual fact, it's a hobby show being held in the main recreation room from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. today and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Friday.

Why a hobby show? Says Miss Ruth Cowper, hospital matron, "We knew that there was all kinds of talent among staff members and we felt that the best way to get to know each other was through our hobbies."

"Some of us got together and decided that this was a good time to have a show. We'll all welcome Christmas Day knowing each other, and liking each other that much more."

On the committee with Miss Cowper are E. S. Cassells, administrative assistant; Mrs. Margo Leeming, medical social worker, and Fred Alloway, a member of the hospital's housekeeping department.

Asked what she had contributed to the novel show, Miss Cowper pointed to some artistic centrepieces, made of driftwood and buffed to a velvety finish. She modestly added, "I like Nature to do most of the work."

When I took in the show on Wednesday, patients and staff were milling around in numbers and an atmosphere of conviviality made me forget that this was a hospital.

All were fascinated by the number and variety of entries. Standing in front of two forceful oil paintings, one of which you could almost feel the sea surging, I overheard one nurse say to another, "Those are painted by Miss ... I never dreamt she felt that way."

As intrigued as they were, I asked about the painter and was told that she was one of the maids, competent, but quiet ... not the type of person you'd envision standing at the edge of a storm-tossed ocean for hours. Perhaps one of the most popular, and novel, exhibits was that of an orderly who lists hide-tanning as one of his main hobbies. Here were rabbit and ever crocheted.

The European background of several staffers was brought to the fore in their exhibits. One male orderly, Jan Hennekes, had executed some masterly oil paintings and it didn't take the Dutch windmill in one of his paintings to make you aware that here was a technique that had its roots in Europe.

Another European technique that was artistically reproduced was seen in a Christmas scene that was dominated by two of the most unusual angel figurines I've ever seen.

Their creator told me that these were made of old sheeting, stiffened with wallpaper paste, molded around wire and cardboard cones. Sprayed with gold and prettied with "trusses" of string and lace collars, they were impressively beautiful.

It would be difficult to describe each kind of hobby presented. There were too many to list, including hand-knitted coats, petit point pictures, calendars decorated with arrangements of preserved flowers and a host of other articles.

As I left I had to agree with Miss Cowper that this was one bright with hand-painted roses, glittering holiday decorations, children's dresses that would have little girls' eyes popping, and bottles of saki wine, each in the most unusual containers.

It was hard to say which exhibitor was outstanding, there were so many items to draw the eye. But, if one was to be picked for versatility, it would have to be Mrs. Muriel Buttrey. She ran the gamut, having prepared pillow-cases that were one bright with hand-painted roses, glittering holiday decorations, children's dresses that would have little girls' eyes popping, and bottles of saki wine, each in the most unusual containers.

Each item had given me a message that hours of conversation at a cocktail party might never have produced.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Hold Holiday Parties

A regimental dinner and children's Christmas party are two of the holiday events to be held by the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada. A troop of clowns, the Queen's Own Bugles, and Santa Claus were all part of the gala children's event held in the Macaulay Point gymnasium this afternoon. Capt. R. J. A. Bunner, as Santa Claus, distributed gifts to the 243 children of the officers and men attending the affair. Refreshments were served and the children enjoyed singing carols and watching a Walt Disney film during the afternoon.

On Friday, the officers, senior non-commissioned officers and warrant officers will serve dinner to the corporals and men of the regiment. Santa Claus will again be on hand to distribute gifts. Among those serving the meal will be Staff Sgt. S. Chernich who will be preparing the meal also.

Home for Christmas

Sgt. Ronald Woolger, RCMP, his wife and their two children, Terri Lynn and Randall, will arrive from Regina on Saturday to spend the holiday season with Mrs. Woolger's parents, Dr. and Mrs. James L. Magrath of Dufferin Avenue. The visitors will be here until Jan. 5.

Home-Made Corsages

Mrs. J. C. B. Keane and Mrs. R. R. Hopkins made individual corsages for every member and decorated the tables when the Woman's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital held its annual members' dinner in the hospital's Harmony Room. It was decided that Mrs. H. V. Wilkinson would head a committee to decorate Christmas trees in the Richmond Pavilion prior to the holiday. On Christmas morning, Mrs. I. A. Wright and Mrs. Amy Deas will present silver baby spoons to mothers of new babies at the hospital.

Veterans Feted

Friends and relatives of 11 patients at the Veterans' Hospital gathered in the recreation room recently for the monthly birthday party. Dr. W. L. Coke, hospital director, extended birthday greetings and Mrs. H. F. Jarvis, president of the Women's Auxiliary to the hospital, presented a gift to each of the patients. Mrs. Irene McAllister co-ordinated the entertainment which featured Alice Syrett, vocalist; Grace Watkins, piano; Geoff Venables, violin; and Al Smith, piano. Singing of Christmas carols was included in the program. The nursing staff had decorated the recreation room in a Christmas theme for the occasion and the dietary staff provided the refreshments.

Their creator told me that these were made of old sheeting, stiffened with wallpaper paste, molded around wire and cardboard cones. Sprayed with gold and prettied with "trusses" of string and lace collars, they were impressively beautiful.

It would be difficult to describe each kind of hobby presented. There were too many to list, including hand-knitted coats, petit point pictures, calendars decorated with arrangements of preserved flowers and a host of other articles.

Mark Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Crampton, 3861 Shelbourne Street, will mark their golden wedding anniversary this coming Friday. They were married in Hampton, Surrey, Eng. on December 22, 1917, and came to Canada in 1919. They settled in Hanna, Alta., where they homesteaded for 10 years. They moved to Vancouver in 1929, where they lived until coming to Victoria in

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yacht Club announced today that it had accepted the challenge of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron of Australia for the America's Cup race in 1970 but left the door open for a round-robin among other countries.

The club said it also had received challenges from the Royal Dorset Yacht Club of England, the Royal Yacht Club of Greece and the Yacht Club d'Hyères of France.

Death Won't Stop
Heart Transplants

CAPE TOWN (CP) — Dr. Christian N. Barnard said today the death of the world's first heart transplant patient left no evidence that heart transplants should be discontinued.

Dr. Barnard, who performed the heart transplant of Louis Washkansky Dec. 3, said a post-mortem produced no clinical evidence that rejection played a part in the patient's death.

"As soon as the occasion arises we will do the next heart transplant," Barnard told a news conference less than eight hours after Washkansky, 53, died in Groote Schuur Hospital.

Earlier Washkansky's anesthetist reported that the transplanted heart worked well until the very end and that the post-mortem indicated the patient died of a severe localized infection of the lungs — pneumonia.

Dr. Marthinus C. Botha, a pathologist, also said at this stage there is no clear evidence that rejection played a part in the outcome of the operation.

Drs. Barnard and Botha appeared at the news conference with cardiologist Professor Velva Schrire, pathologist R. J. G. Thomson and cardiologist Dr. A. Forder.

A statement issued to the press shortly before the news conference said:

"Clinically the cause of death was respiratory failure due to bilateral pneumonia. This was confirmed at post-mortem by Professor J. G. Thomson."

Asked if he considered Washkansky's death "negated the experiment" Dr. Barnard replied:

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

Carollers to Come Calling Friday Night

By KATHERINE THOMAS

Sharing time is a happy time.

Michael, Suzanne and David Georgeson of 1530 Earle Place, Victoria, learned that motto at Sunday School and they decided to put it into practice by helping the children of Asia.

Nine-year-old David was very concerned when he saw a picture of a half-starved little Indian girl in The Times. So he asked his mother what he could do to help. She told him the Unitarian Service Committee was appealing for money to buy food, clothing and medical supplies to help the children.

David didn't have anything left in his money-box but Mrs. Georgeson remembered that when she was a girl in Ireland she and her friends used to go from door to door singing Christmas carols for charity.

The idea caught fire and the Georgeson children with their cousins from Ireland, Heather, Amanda and Fred Dobbs and their next-door neighbor Anne Henderson will brave snowy weather Friday evening, singing carols to raise money for the Times Appeal.

"And if it is a success, they're going to make it a yearly thing," says Mrs. Georgeson.

There have been some other money contributions to the fund.

Margaret Rogers organized

Five other youngsters who put on a play contributed the proceeds — $2.62.

A blind pensioner sent in five dollars.

Four little ones, Malcolm, Stephanie, Scott and Pamela gave up cake, cookies, and dessert for a week to send in four dollars.

A native daughter of 72 years, Elizabeth Richardson, contributed one dollar, and wrote: "I feel better at Christmas by sending this. Wish I could send more."

Donations to the Times Christmas Appeal may be left at the main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Yates at Douglas, the Times business

Changes Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal or provincial lotteries or those conducted by charitable or religious organizations, agricultural fairs or exhibitions or persons licensed by a province will be permitted under amendments to the Criminal Code given first reading in the Commons today.

Another new section makes homosexual acts between consenting adults no longer illegal.

Abortions would be made legal where a hospital therapeutic abortion committee certified in writing that continuation of the pregnancy would likely endanger the health of the mother.

The changes are contained in a 73-page omnibus bill containing a number of amendments to the Criminal Code.

At present adults committing homosexual acts are liable to five years in prison under a section dealing with gross indecency.

There is no requirement that these persons have to be periodically examined to determine whether they are fit to stand trial, released or returned to prison.

Another amendment would permit racing association incorporated at any time by Parliament or the legislatures to conduct meetings with pari-mutuel betting.

Under the present law, pari-mutuel betting is restricted to the tracks of associations incorporated before May 19, 1947, or since then by special act of Parliament or a legislature.

BOOST NUMBER
The number of races which may be run in one day with pari-mutuel betting would be increased to 10 from eight.

The omnibus bill would also provide more effective control over possession and use of firearms and other weapons; provide 11-year prison sentence for persons convicted of forging passports or using passports known to be forged; make harassing telephone calls an offence punishable on summary conviction; prohibit a person convicted of cruelty to animals from keeping an animal or bird for up to two years from date of conviction and make it an offence to sell or possess an automobile master key unless licensed to do so by a province.

LBJ AND THIEU:

'Saigon Willing To Meet Cong'

By MERRIMAN SMITH

CANBERRA (UPI) — President Johnson and President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam announced today Saigon leaders were willing to meet with Viet Cong representatives on "relevant matters" including peace.

A joint communiqué was seen as an effort to dispel published reports of a Washington-Saigon conflict over the question of peace negotiations between the South Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front (NLF) — the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The statement was released after a two-hour meeting between Johnson and Thieu at the U.S. embassy.

"President Thieu reaffirmed a willingness to discuss relevant matters with any individuals now associated with the so-called National Liberation Front while making it clear that his government could not regard the Front as an independent organization in any sense," the communiqué said.

ACCEPT ACCORDS

Public Housing Boosted

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal support for public housing will increase to $500,000,000 next year from a current level of $335,000,000, Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons today.

The increase will take place within a smaller over-all budget for the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., at the expense of a program of direct loans to builders for speculative construction.

Mr. Nicholson spoke in a special three-hour housing debate. The government had told the federal-provincial housing conference last week that loans for public housing would be increased in 1968, but had not said by how much.

Prime Minister Pearson led off the debate, warning that the constitutional jurisdiction of the provinces over housing matters cannot be ignored by Ottawa.

New Democrat Reid Scott, whose demand last week for an emergency housing debate led to today's discussion showered Mr. Nicholson with a vote of confidence and made a plea for a separate ministry of housing.

Mr. Scott called on the government to commit $1,500,000,000 a year to solving Canada's housing crisis.

Housing is the country's outstanding social problem and deserves a budget matching the defence budget, he said.

SAY MEETING FLOPPED

Several opposition MPs claimed that the housing conference was a flop. Mr. Nicholson, minister responsible for housing, said it had agreed to a number of specific federal proposals, and arranged for continuing study of housing and urban problems.

But he said the conference had failed to get anywhere on problems of pollution, urban transportation, municipal administration and high land costs.

Provincial leaders had refused to discuss federal statements on these areas, he said.

"They should not be afraid to discuss them openly with cameras and television on them here in Ottawa," Mr. Nicholson said.

"This is where the conference failed."

Mr. Pearson said the federal-provincial conference was not a failure and did not break up prematurely.

It achieved its purpose of examining problems of housing and urban growth and follow-up meetings were arranged to see what can be done co-operatively by the federal and provincial governments, Mr. Pearson said.

The prime minister also said there is a need for caution in tackling housing and urban growth problems because of the question of constitutional jurisdiction.

The main jurisdiction for housing rests with the provincial governments, Mr. Pearson said. Some were urging that the government act quickly, without regard for constitutional questions.

The purpose of the conference was to examine the "serious problem" of housing and this had been done.

Delegates had discussed the problem of increased costs for housing—up 50 per cent in the last 15 years despite increased efficiency of the construction industry. Mr. Pearson noted that salaries had climbed 100 per cent in the same period.

They had also discussed such problems as pollution and transport in relation to urban growth.

DEATH

lungs were affected by patches of pneumonia caused by an extremely virulent form of germ.

The infection had spread below the chest "in a small way," but Washkansky was otherwise "as clean as a whistle," the doctor said.

Washkansky, except for periods of sleep, remained conscious most of Wednesday night and his pulse rate was strong until just before death, Dr. Ozinsky said. The anesthetist said he spent the night at Washkansky's bedside giving him air manually through an air bag and by machine.

He said Washkansky was unable to talk because of the tubes in his mouth but was able to communicate until just before he died.

The autopsy on the 53-year-old wholesale grocer's body could influence plans the surgical team at Cape Town's Groote Schuur Hospital has made for more heart transplants early next year.

Shortly after Washkansky's operation, a Brooklyn, N.Y., heart surgeon, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, performed a transplant on a 2½-week-old boy but the new heart failed after six hours. Kantrowitz said he could not explain the failure of the operation but he still believed in the procedure.

Dr. Kantrowitz today expressed sorrow over Washkansky's death.

"However, we believe that the operation ... represents a giant step forward," he said, and the procedure eventually will become a successful one.

"I feel completely empty," said Edward Darvall, father of the 25-year-old girl whose healthy heart replaced Washkansky's failing organ in the historic operation.

"After the operation there was at least part of my daughter still alive in Mr. Washkansky. But now she is completely dead."

His daughter, Denise Anne, suffered fatal brain damage when struck by a car Dec. 2 and Darvall gave immediate permission for her heart to be used in the transplant.

When Washkansky's condition grew grave, his 41-year-old wife, Ann, was called to his bedside with their son, Michael, 15, about 3:30 a.m. They left after a short time, and Washkansky died three hours later.

Funeral services were scheduled Friday at a cemetery outside Cape Town.

Washkansky had been considered an excellent prospect for a heart transplant. His own badly fibrosed heart had been expected to quit two weeks ago, and his wife said when doctors suggested a transplant "he snapped up the chance, not even making use of the two days Dr. Barnard gave him to think it over."

A native of Lithuania who came to South Africa at the age of nine, Washkansky was described by friends as generous, outgoing and tough but with a kindly, happy disposition and a dry sense of humor.

A keen soccer player, weight-lifter and swimmer in his youth, the wholesale grocer was fond of dancing and dining out.

"My husband could not accept that he might be an invalid for the rest of his life," Mrs. Washkansky said. "The thought alone nearly killed him."

start negotiations with three other applicants for entry into the European trade grouping—the Republic of Ireland, Denmark and Norway.

Luns, an unwavering champion of British membership in the market, said the French refusal to open negotiations was a "grave hour in the post-war history of Europe."

His government was "profoundly shocked" by the French attitude, he said.

He said his government did not consider that the membership applications were rejected and that each market member could raise the admission question at any time.

Nor did The Netherlands consider the present structure of the market as the ideal of a United Europe, he added.

Luns said it was important not only that Britain and the other applicants should keep in touch with the market countries, but also that they should not turn their back on the Community.

King Hints Return Near

By PHILIP DOPoulos

ATHENS (AP) — Greece's political crisis appeared today to be reaching a turning point after King Constantine said he would return if the junta announced a firm timetable for restoration of democracy.

The 27-year-old monarch's condition appeared easy for the junta to accept. He called for an "acceptable date" for publication of a new constitution, an early date for national referendum on it and assurances to the Greek people that they will be able to elect a new government.

Constantine did not stipulate what should be in the constitution, what his powers should be or when the election should be held.

The junta, which wants Constantine back to help it hold recognition as the legitimate government, long has promised to return to parliamentary rule. A draft constitution is to be presented to it Saturday—a constitution sharply reducing the king's powers.

COLONELS RESIGN

The three ruling colonels who came to power in a coup last April 21 resigned Wednesday from the army, clearing the way for them to run as civilians in the elections they have promised. But there was no indication the action would diminish their grip on Greece.

Speaking to reporters in Rome Wednesday after five days of negotiation with the junta, Constantine said he did not oppose the April coup because he wanted to avoid bloodshed, and he stayed in Greece for eight months because he hoped he could convince the junta to return to democracy.

But, he said, a "deviation" in the junta's avowed intention to do this became clear and he tried to call the 8,000 Greeks into a counter-coup Dec. 13. It never really got started and he fled to Rome.

"I decided to act," he said. "I did not succeed ... let us be perfectly realistic. I have no actual power at my command now. But I do have behind my purpose the desire of every Greek to live in freedom."

In the negotiations, carried on through intermediaries, Constantine had been reported demanding that the junta leaders resign from the government, that all who stood with him in his attempted counter-coup be given amnesty and that elections be held immediately.
